Lewis Demands Boost in Salary From Operators

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John L. Lewis called on the nation's bituminous coal operators Tuesday to boost pay and shorten the work week and create a health and welfare fund for his 400,000 soft coal miners.

Lewis, who has threatened a United Mine Workers' strike April 1, submitted only generalized demands at a conference of producers and UMW officials in Washington.

His formal proposals, which he termed "negotiable suggestions" did not refer to his demand on the operators a year ago for a 10 per cent per ton participation royalty on coal for the health and welfare fund.

Meanwhile, the first break in strikes which have curtailed brass production came when the Scoville Manufacturing Company at Waterbury, Conn., announced agreement had been reached with 4,300 strikers.

AGREE ON PAY BOOST

Scoville, one of the "big three" of the brass industry, said it had agreed to an 18 1-2 cents hourly pay boost for its CIO workers who struck Feb. 6, and that the plant probably would reopen Monday. The International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union said a mass meeting had been called for Wednesday to ratify the agreement.

There was no indication immediately, that the agreement affected similar strikes at the American Brass Company and the Chase Brass and Copper Co.

In Detroit, negotiations were resumed between General Motors and the striking CIO United Auto Workers in the 112-day old strike of 175,000 production workers.

After a three and one-half hour session during the day, the company and union met again Tuesday night, the first night negotiations since Feb. 28.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW vice president and leader of the General Motors strikers, said he saw no special significance to the night negotiations. "They were willing to meet and so were we" he said.

GE RESUMES NEGOTIATIONS

The General Electric Company also resumed negotiations in New York with representatives of 100,000 CIO electrical workers who have been on strike since Jan. 15.

Two railroad brotherhoods, which postponed a nationwide strike set for last Monday until their dispute over wages and working rules could be reviewed by a fact-finding board, demanded swift action in the dispute. As the board opened its hearing in Chicago, representatives of the brotherhoods demanded that the panel complete its hearings in the 30 days pro-

Pauley Action Deferred

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—The Senate Naval Affairs Committee Tuesday postponed further action on Edwin W. Pauley's nomination to be Undersecretary of the Navy amid increasing indications that Pauley will withdraw his controversial appointment Wednesday.

The committee called off a scheduled hearing on Pauley's qualifications and Chairman David I. Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, said it would meet in closed session Wednesday to decide whether to hold further hearings or conclude them.

Early settlement of the dispute also was indicated by a conference of top Democratic leaders, including Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, who also conferred Tuesday with President Truman.

CONFERENCE HELD

Hannegan went up to the capitol to confer with Pauley, Walsh and Sen. Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, who has handled Pauley's defense during six weeks of hearings. Asked whether he had received any word from Mr. Truman on the nomination, Walsh replied: "No."

Walsh gave no explanation of the decision to call off the hearing. Pauley had been prepared to continue his defense against charges that he improperly solicited campaign funds as Democratic national treasurer in 1944.

He reportedly is ready to ask Mr. Truman to withdraw his nomination after the committee clears his name of this charge, brought by former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

WALSH'S STATEMENT

Walsh said hehad no further information on Pauley's withdrawal, but added that he had heard that Pauley might be willing to "stand on the record" as it has been made to date. This might indicate that Pauley already considers his name cleared.

Walsh predicted the committee would not vote on the nomination Wednesday.

Both Tydings and Sen. Charles W. Tobey, Republican, New Hampshire, leader of the Pauley opposition, have indicated that they expect the hearings to end this week. Tobey said he thought they would be over "by Wednesday night" and Tydings indicated he expected them to be ended by next Sunday at the latest.

Hannegan, who has been under fire from some Democratic leaders for his part in the Pauley nomination, declined to say what he and Mr. Truman talked about although he admitted that politics was a topic.

Solon Asks Frank Talk To Soviet

'Those Wanting Peace Must Not Provoke War,' Connally Says

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—Chairman Connally, Democrat, Texas, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the senate Tuesday he is convinced that Russia does not want another war but he warned that "those who want peace must not commit acts that tend to provoke war."

Reporting on the London meeting of the United Nations Organization, to which he was a U. S. delegate, he said Russia was entitled to any form of government she wants but "these rights do not extend beyond her boundaries."

Expressing his views as this country and Russia were differing sharply on international issues, he suggested that Big Three or Big Five meetings be held periodically to smooth friction before it boils over into war.

SPECTATORS APPLAUD

"In frank conversations face to face—in candid explanations eye to eye—in language clear and plain and if need be blunt," he said, "many questions which might otherwise result in serious international friction could be adjusted."

Galleries jammed with 1,000 spectators joined the senate in applause when he finished. Sen. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, another delegate to UNO who issued an even sterner warning to Russia three weeks ago, rushed over and shook his hands.

The speech coincided with mounting agitation for another Big Three meeting. President Truman has not indicated whether he is receptive but he has implied that any such conference should be held in Washington.

MEETING SET FOR MAY

Arrangements already call for regular meetings of foreign ministers of the major powers, with the next scheduled for Paris in May. But the State Department is represented as feeling there should be less emphasis than in the past on such meetings and more on settlement of international disputes through the United Nations.

Connally termed the first UNO session an "unqualified success" and said that if the same co-operation is continued at the New York and future meetings there will be permanent peace. He said his experiences at London and San Francisco "convince me that Russia does not want another war."

"Russia has the right to any form of government it sanctions," he said. "It has the right to adopt its own system without the intervention of any foreign nation. These rights do not extend beyond her boundaries."

THIS WASN'T A LOST WEEKEND, BUT—SHADES OF CARRIE NATION WALKED

EVANSTON, Ill., March 12.—(INS)—Evanston, long known as the home of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Tuesday raised its community head when a Northwestern University professor cleared some of its citizens of suspicion of losing a weekend or so.

There had been considerable breath-smelling and eyeing of the neighbors' behavior when some citizens reported seeing a sparrow sporting a bright red tail feather.

Then, when others reported sighting a sparrow with a brilliant yellow tail feather, the local Carrie Nations took up their axes and prepared to go hunting for a speakeasy in the dry township.

Tuesday, though, Dr. Albert Wolfson, instructor in zoology at Northwestern, explained everything. His students had cemented red feathers to the tails of English sparrows and yellow feathers to those of white-throated sparrows for identification purposes.

U. S. Asks Reds To Explain Troop Movements Into Iran

Reds Move Army From Mukden

CHUNGKING, March 12.—(AP)—Official Russian assurance was given Tuesday that Soviet troops evacuated from Mukden were slated for shipment out of Manchuria, but the precise situation in and around Mukden was obscured by conflicting reports.

It was taken for granted here, however, that central government forces would be able to hold the city despite reported incursions of Chinese Communists. The latter were reported to have obtained only a toe-hold in one suburban section.

From northeast China command headquarters in Chinchow, 150 miles southwest of Mukden, Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Davis reported that Chinese government troops inside Mukden were taking control of the city in an orderly fashion. They were being steadily reinforced by well-equipped units moving in over the Mukden-Peiping railroad.

REPORTS UNCONFIRMED

Davis said there was no confirmation whatever, in telephoned messages from Mukden, of earlier reports of street clashes inside the city between Chinese Communists and government troops, nor was there any evidence of previously reported large fires there.

Maj. Robert Ring, of Chicago, U. S. Army assistant military attache in Mukden, was quoted as saying that all complete units of Maj. Gen. Kovtoun Stankevitch's Red army garrison had been pulled out March 7 and 11, and that only rear echelon elements remained in the city.

A Chinese Central News Agency dispatch from Mukden said Stankevitch himself planned to leave the city Friday with the few remaining troops—described as "probably his bodyguard."

The same dispatch quoted Chinese authorities in Changchun as reporting that "layer after layer" of Communist troops surrounded the northern outskirts of Mukden and that there were no central government troops in that sector.

TROOPS PATROL AIRFIELD

At Chinchow, however, Gen. Shih-hui and Gen. Chao Chi-hsiang said that Peilong airfield, north of Mukden, was being patrolled by government troops, although Russian planes still were on the field.

The first Russian explanation of their evacuation of Mudken was reported in a Chinese Central News dispatch from Changchun. It said Gen. Tung Yen-Ping, head of the Chinese military mission in Manchuria, had called upon the Russian chief of staff to inquire about the troop movements.

The Soviet officer replied that, inasmuch as the Chinese government had announced its readiness to take over garrison duties in Mukden, Soviet forces had begun to leave the city for Changchun.

He gave no indication how long the evacuated troops would stop over in Changchun, but said insufficient transportation facilities had prevented their shipment direct to Soviet territory, so a stopover in the Manchurian capital was unavoidable.

TROOP MOVEMENT

The Manchurian picture was further brightened by the agreement reached here Monday for inclusion of that last territory in the operational scope of the Sino-American truce headquarters in Peiping. The government prepared to dispatch truce teams to halt Chinese factional strife in all Manchurian areas coming into Chinese hands.

Movement of government troops into or toward Manchuria continued meanwhile.

Six LST's carrying 4,000 troops of the Chinese new 71st Army left Shanghai Tuesday for Chingwangtao, presumably en route into Man-

Note Seeks Moscow's Intentions

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP) The State Department Tuesday night disclosed it has received reports that Russian armed forces and "heavy military combat equipment" have been moving south from the Soviet frontier toward Tehran and the western border of Iran.

The United States government, the department said, has asked the Russian government to confirm or deny the reports and if they are true to explain the reason for the troop movements.

While the official announcement did not go into details of the Russian forces involved, diplomatic authorities said the forces were reported to include tanks and cavalry in considerable strength.

CAPITAL CONJECTURE

The new American note on this situation is in addition to a note sent earlier this month protesting the failure of the Soviet government to withdraw its troops from Iran completely by March 2 in accordance with an Anglo-Soviet-American agreement made with the Tehran government during the war.

Diplomatic officials said that they did not know exactly the significance of troop movements toward the western border of Iran, which fronts on both Turkey and Iran with its rich Mosul oil fields, but they said the development, if true, might be connected with Russian pressure on Turkey for possession of the Turkish provinces of Kars and Ardahan and for special rights in control of the Dardanelles.

TEXT OF STATEMENT

The official statement given out on the situation said:

"The Department of State has received reports to the effect that during the last week additional Soviet armed forces and heavy military combat equipment have been moving southward from the direction of the Soviet frontier through Tabriz toward Tehran and toward the western border of Iran. This government has inquired of the Soviet government whether such movements have taken place and if so the reasons therefor."

The note asking the reasons was sent several days ago, evidently when the first reports of troop movemer were received.

Tabriz is a major Iranian communication center in the northern part of the country between Tehran and the Russian frontier.

Tehran itself for several days has been the scene of political disturbances as the result of which the leftist Tudah party is reported to have compelled the dissolution of the present parliament by preventing it from getting a quorum of members in time to vote itself an extension of its power to remain in office.

This presents the Iranian government of Premier Ahmed Qavam-es-Sultaneh with a first-

Black Market Indictments Name 7 Corporations, 245 Individuals

NEW YORK, March 12.—(UP)—A black market ring said to be the largest ever uncovered in the United States, was alleged Tuesday in federal grand jury indictments against seven corporations and 245 persons.

Seven indictments charged that the ring, with the aid of ration coupons faked from tinted paper and cut-up telephone books, overdrew ration accounts by 75,000,000 meat ration coupons and sugar coupons amounting to 6,000,000,000 pounds of sugar.

Returned after the grand jury heard more than 1,000 witnesses in the most expensive investigation conducted in the New York district, the indictments said the violations occurred between March 15, 1945, and V-J Day, Aug. 16.

U. S. Atty. John F. X. McGohey said the ring had a "tight hold" on the sale of ration checks to wholesale distributors in the New York area.

Forged stamps issued by the ring, he said, were found as far west as Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin. They were sold most intensively in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New York state, the attorney said.

Pieces of tinted paper and pages of telephone books were inclosed in envelopes marked on the outside with false numbers of ration stamps and filed in ration accounts with banks, McGohey said. Banks shortchanged in this manner did not discover the deception for some time.

Downtown Properties Sell for Half Million

The sale of two large units of downtown Atlanta real estate, including a seven-story department store building fronting on Whitehall street and another large building on Peachtree street was disclosed here yesterday with the combined purchase price for both pieces of property revealed as $500,000.

Both business areas were bought by the R. A. C. Realty Company, headed by Ben J. Massell Sr., from the estate of Edward H. Inman.

The department store building is the seven-story-and-basement structure at Whitehall, Hunter and Broad streets which houses Kline's department store.

Now known as the Kline building, it fronts at 91 Whitehall street and at one time housed the old Davison-Paxon-Stokes Company. The building has a 50-foot frontage on Whitehall, extends for 70 feet on Hunter street through to Broad street where it has a 98-foot frontage.

The Peachtree street property is a 50 by 240-foot block located 150 feet north of the northeast corner of Peachtree and Harris and housing the Ben Sheftall Beauty Supply Company and the Frank H. DiCristina automobile agency, the firms being located at 259 and 261 Peachtree street.

With this new acquisition, the R. A. C. Realty Company owns 300 feet of property on Peachtree street, including the five-story Witt building, extending from Harris toward Baker. This is one of the largest solid blocks of downtown real estate owned by any Atlanta real estate company, according to the president of the firm. His associates are Ben J. Massell Jr., vice president, and Miss Carolyn Selig, secretary-treasurer.

The transaction involving both the Peachtree and Whitehall street properties was handled by John O. Chiles, of the Adams-Cates Company.

Arnall Warns Vets of 'Quislings' Who Would Try To Exploit Georgia

MACON, March 12.—Warning middle Georgia veterans to beware of persons who would try to exploit them, Gov. Arnall Tuesday night urged ex-servicemen and women to take the leadership in building this state in peace as they did in defending it in war.

The Governor did not mention this summer's political races, but he gave this thought to the veterans:

"The political affairs of this nation and of our state rely heavily upon you. You must govern this country and state. You will have to set your faces firmly against the corrupt who seek to steal the people's money; against the inefficient who fritter it away; against the demigods who seek by dividing our people into discordant groups and classes to obtain for themselves and their henchmen control over public affairs.

"In Georgia, it will be necessary to fight yet through battles against the Quislings — my grandfather called them scalawags—who represent the non-resident interests, interested solely in exploiting our human and natural resources and bent upon preserving that colonial condition that has impoverished the south.

"If I appear to speak of them with some bitterness, if I apply to them the labels that a Frenchman might use to one of the Vichy guttersnipes or that a Norwegian might apply to a fellow countryman on Himmler's payroll, it is because they are made of the same stuff, that they employ the same foul tactics of lying propaganda to blind the people of our state and to work harm and hurt to the honor and safety of our common country."

Gov. Arnall appealed to the veterans to melt themselves back into their civilian lives and duties and not to let exploiters set them apart from other people.

"One of your principal objectives in the coming years will be to combat cynicism," Arnall told the group which met at Macon's municipal auditorium. "If you interest yourselves in the affairs and progress of your local communities, in the development of our industries, of our farms, in the building of better schools and colleges, you will have contributed as much to our state and nation as you can contribute by defending it."

He warned that there will be

$10,000,000 Grady Hospital Planned As Nucleus for Vast Medical Center

Plans for construction and financing a new Grady hospital at a cost ranging from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 will be studied by a special eight-man committee representing the Fulton-DeKalb County Hospital Authority and doctors serving Grady at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow at Grady when the authority moves to expedite establishment of a $30,000,000 medical center in Atlanta.

The joint group was created yesterday by the hospital authority which insisted on early action to provide adequate and needed facilities at the "very earliest possible moment."

Serving on the group will be Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the hospital authority; Frank Wilson, Grady superintendent; Preston S. Arkwright, vice chairman of the authority, and Frank Thomas, Carl Milner and Hughes Spalding, representing the authority, and Dr. Phinizy Calhoun and Dr. James Edgar Paullin, representing the doctors who serve at Grady.

Decision to expedite construction was unanimous with members of the authority insisting that work be begun just as soon as financing plans can be completed and materials obtained.

Wilson warned authority members that the cost will range from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 on existing construction costs, but emphasized his belief that federal agencies will match funds provided by the authority.

Preliminary plans for the new hospital have been mapped for months, but the new joint committee is charged specifically with working out financing details and deciding definitely on the type and details of construction. When it has completed its studies, a special meeting of the authority will be called to pass on the committee's recommendations.

Erection of a new Grady hospital is the first step in establishing a mammoth medical center in Atlanta costing at least $30,000,000, and the authority yesterday moved to map final plans for the nucleus.

It was estimated that the authority could retire $3,500,000 worth of revenue certificates over a 30-year period at approximately $200,000 annually on the present

ATHENS, March 12.—Students at the University of Georgia rejected the movement to institute student government on the campus by a vote of 1,210 to 652 Tuesday.

The final results showed a total of 1,871 votes cast. On the main campus, the vote was 877 against, 485 for; on south campus 213 to 40, and on co-ordinate campus 129 to 126. The official vote will be announced by Dean of Students William Tate Monring.

The election was most orderly although campaigning was heated. The poll holders were surprised at the large turn-out of students.

Vinson Monetary Steering Group Draws Fire of Savannah Delegates

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 12.—(AP)—A conflict of opinion between Chairman Vinson, of the powerful United States delegation and spokesman for some other nations flared up Tuesday over the newly created executive committee of the governors of the world bank and fund.

Pierre Mendes-France, chief delegate of France, brought the clash into the open by telling reporters the 12-nation executive committee would live only during the two-week international monetary conference here.

Vinson, who proposed the body as a sort of steering committee and became its chairman yesterday, stated it would go on indefinitely.

The treasury secretary reiterated that view Tuesday night even after Mendes-France's words disclosed that a misunderstanding had occurred in Monday's initial, closed-doors meeting of the boards of governors, at which the United States carried off major roles of leadership.

Some other delegations were understood to support Mendes-France's view that the small but influential steering committee was purely a temporary affair. Its members named by Vinson, are the United States, Britain, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, China, Egypt, France, India, Mexico, the Netherlands and Poland.

Tempo of the 35-nation meeting on nearby Wilmington Island speeded up Monday with these developments:

A recommendation that only six months' time be granted in which Russia and 10 other signers of the Bretton Woods agreement may enter the bank and fund under the original terms, if they have not already done so.

A quick but tentative decision on the terms by which Denmark may come in. The terms: She must contribute $68,000,000 to the $9,100,000,000 bank and a like sum in gold and currency to the $8,800,000,000 fund for the stabilization of world currencies.

Arrival of the belated Yugoslav delegation dismissed speculation whether Yugoslavia was ignoring the meeting.

Russia, the largest power affected by the six-month deadline, remained an uncommunicative onlooker. Her chief delegate, Fedor P. Bystrov, sits at a side table at meetings of the governing boards and committees. He is not allowed in debate, has asked no questions and been asked none.

Mendes-France, who held a news conference to tell reporters the actions of the membership committee headed by him, told reporters that Bystrov had made

HAS 4 CHILDREN

War Bride With Largest FamilyLands

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—A British war bride with the largest family of an American GI yet to arrive in the United States—four children—waited in New York Tuesday for transportation to their new home near Greenville, S. C.

The bride is Mrs. Florence E. Smith, wife of former Cpl. Arthur M. Smith, and the children are Barbara, 6, and Johnnie, 4, who are children by Mrs. Smith's first husband, killed at Singapore in January, 1942, and Horace, 18 months and William eight months.

"Some girls just came for fun," Mrs. Smith told reporters aboard the troopship Santa Paula. "Not me. I don't expect much—just my own house and on my own. I'm not expensive. You can't afford to be, not when you've got all these children."

Mrs. Smith said she met her second husband in a Hertfordshire village and married him about a year after the death of her first husband.

Also arriving in New York were 49 Australian war brides, who sailed from Melbourne three weeks ago, landed at San Francisco and came east by train.

All but three of them were met by their husbands. Transportation for Mrs. Alex Rudelowitz to New Britain, Conn., and Mrs. Walter Kuell and Mrs. Joseph Santos to Providence, R. I., was arranged by the Travelers' Aid.

For one of the brides, Maurine de Courcey, wife of Jack de Courcey, seaman attached to the Shore Patrol at New London, Conn., there was double reason for rejoicing. Tuesday was her birthday. The De Courceys have one child, Earle, two.

A VANDERBILT LIVES AMONG MULTITUDES

Gloria Tells Her Moneyless Mama To Get Job

By JERRY B. HANNIFEN

MEXICO CITY, March 12.—(UP)—Heiress Gloria Vanderbilt Stokowski suggested Tuesday night that her mother, the widowed Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, of New York City, try her hand at a job.

Gloria was indignant about New York reports that her husband, Symphony Maestro Leopold Stokowski, had exercised "undue influence" to persuade her to cut off her mother's $21,000 annual allowance.

"When I became of age I decided to discontinue the allowance made by the court to my mother because I am certain she can work as she has done in the past, and as I am doing at present," she said.

"My husband has absolutely no influence on the way in which I spend my money."

Gloria, now 22, married the 64-year-old maestro, her second husband, last year. Her first marriage, which ended in divorce was to Pat Di Cicco.

UNHAPPY CHILDHOOD

In an interview, she said she had had an unhappy childhood and now "I see so many children in the world today who are suffering!"

"I want to help them," she continued. "The money the court formerly gave my mother I am now giving to blind children and to help feed children who are homeless and starving in many countries."

"For this purpose," she continued, "I have formed a foundation which is already operating. In order to make sure the children really receive the help they need, I am personally doing the secretarial work of the foundation."

The "poor little rich girl" said she would take care of her grandmother, too.

"I shall always take care of my grandmother and give her everything necessary for a good life and shall do the same for my former nurse, who always gave me mother love."

Gloria's estate is valued at more than $4,000,000, but she said she is not legally required to support her mother.

Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt said in New York that her daughter had promised to continue paying her $21,000 a year, but had reneged on the deal.

Mrs. Gloria Kilpatrick Morgan, Gloria's grandmother, sided with Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the girl's great-aunt, against her mother in the famous custody case. The older Mrs. Morgan testified her daughter was "not fit" to raise Gloria.

Mrs. Vanderbilt later called her mother, "Mrs. Morgan, witness against me," and described her aunt as "the woman who hates me." In the custody case, Gloria became a ward of the New York supreme court. Her mother was allowed to see her on weekends only, and the rest of the time she lived with Mrs. Whitney. Later the ruling was modified so that she spent summers with her mother.

The former nurse Gloria mentioned in the interview—Emma Sullivan Keislich—also testified against Mrs. Vanderbilt. Although the custody trial was held in secret, sensational details leaked out of the "gay life" Mrs. Vanderbilt lived at home and abroad.

Mrs. Vanderbilt tried turning her hand at a job, as her daughter suggested Tuesday, once before with not very notable results. With her equally beauteous twin sister, Lady Thelma Furness, she managed a New York gown shop known as Gloria Vanderbilt-Sonia Gowns, Inc. The firm folded in 1938.

Mrs. Vanderbilt also wrote a book called "Without Prejudice" in which she told her side of the custody case. It never made any best-seller lists.

GLORIA VANDERBILT
When 16, the fairest

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK, March 12.—(INS)—Multitudes of anonymous New Yorkers live in this city's innumerable old brown stone houses, long since converted by their thrifty owners into middle-class apartment houses.

New Yorkers on their way up or down the social ladder — these are the people who live in New York's converted brown stones.

The remade brown stone at 31 East 61st street looks no different on the outside than its neighbors. Inside, the dim light betrays the fact that the black and white linoleum on the floor needs scrubbing and the pale gray walls need repainting.

DOESN'T SEEM PROPER

It does not seem at all the proper setting for a Vanderbilt, even a Vanderbilt who has pawned her engagement ring, to live.

The smell of cooking in the public halls, the faint odor of escaping gas so often detected in old houses, make it seem even less suitable as a setting for the beauty and elegance of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, mother of heiress Gloria Vanderbilt Di Cicco Stokowski.

But three small rooms on the top floor of this old brown stone house today comprise the home of the ill-starred woman who has reluctantly admitted that her only child, wife of Conductor Leopold Stokowski, has stopped her annual allowance of $21,000.

At the moment, Mrs. Vanderbilt apparently is paying her current expenses from money obtained when she recently pawned the heart-shaped six-carat engagement ring given her by the late Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Despite the fact he was a Vanderbilt and a son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, Reginald had nothing except a few personal trinkets to leave his wife. His father divided his wealth among his other sons, and "cut off" playboy Reginald with a trust fund of $5,000,000.

WENT TO DAUGHTER

The trust fund automatically went to his daughters, Cathleen and Gloria. Cathleen, the late Mrs. Cathleen Vanderbilt Arostegui, of Havana, was his daughter by a previous marriage.

It was half of her father's $5,000,000 trust fund, considerably increased by careful investments and by additional gifts from her grandmother, the late Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, that Gloria Stokowski inherited on her 21st birthday anniversary.

At that time, Feb. 20, 1945, young Gloria's fortune was estimated at approximately $4,500,000.

After the death of her husband, Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt was dependent for her support on whatever sum the courts allowed her for the support of her young daughter or subsequently on whatever sums young Gloria cared to confer on her mother.

2 Killed in Wreck Near Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 12.—(AP)—Two persons were killed when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a wrecker on the Atlantic Coastal highway near Richmond Hill early today.

Sgt. J. W. Beasley, of the state patrol, identified the dead as John Wesley Moore, of Savannah, and Sam Tillman Morgan, of Richmond Hill. Morgan was driving the automobile, Beasley said. The driver of the wrecker was not injured.

Puppets Arraigned For Shanghai Trials

SHANGHAI, March 12.—(AP)—Chen Kung-Po, former president of the Nanking puppet government, and Chu Ming-Yi, his former minister of foreign affairs, have been arraigned on collaboration charges in the Kiangsu provincial high court at Soochow.

Cheng Pi-Chun (Mme. Wang Ching-Wei), wife of another former puppet president, was arraigned at the same time. In a letter introduced as evidence and written from prison, Mme. Wang waived the right to a special attorney and expressed the hope the court would sentence her to death so "the whole affair might be finished as soon as possible."

Chen, quoted by the court as admitting guilt, made no denial of any charges. The hearing was adjourned after several hours pending further investigation.

BALANCED AGRICULTURE PAYS OFF

State Farmers Reap $200,000,000 As Dividend on Scientific Tilling

By HENRY LESESNE

ATHENS, March 12.—(AP)—Two hundred million dollars is a lot of extra money to make—even in 20 years. But that is what Georgia farmers have done.

It's been done, Kenneth Treanor, Extension Service economist, says, through increased production, better farming methods and a more balanced agriculture — things you've been reading about since Georgia turned from a one-crop economy.

There has been a steady migration of farm people to urban centers. The farm population has decreased a third in two decades. But farmers are producing double what they did 20 years ago.

Treanor points out that farm income for Georgia in 1924, was $282,000,000 or $181 per capita. By 1944 the income had risen to $491,000,000 or $446 per capita.

There are no later figures but all indications point to the fact that the trends have continued.

High prices, you say? That's not the answer. The farm price level, says Treanor, was about the same in 1924 as it was in 1944. The answer is in increased production.

In this period Georgia farmers turned from a one-crop system to a balanced farm program. Two decades ago they got 46 per cent of their income from cotton and only 10 per cent from livestock.

Today, says Treanor, cotton and livestock each contribute 21 per cent to the state's farm income.

The rural population of Georgia has been decreasing for decades. The farm population in 1920 was 1,600,000. In 1945 it was officially estimated between 1,000,000 and 1,100,000.

With the decrease in ratio of land to people, the size of farms in Georgia are increasing. The average size of the Georgia farm increased from 88.1 acres in 1925 to 109.6 acres in 1940.

All indications, says Treanor, are that the average size of the farm in Georgia has increased at a more rapid rate since 1940 than it did from 1925 to 1940.

Georgia farmers, facing the postwar period, are in the best shape financially they have ever been in, Treanor points out. The aggregate farm mortgage indebtedness in Georgia in the 20-year-period decreased from $140,000,000 to $83,000,000.

Batista Is Planning Political 'Comeback'

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 12.—(AP)—"No more revolutions for Cuba" was the campaign slogan voiced here Tuesday by Gen. Fulgencio Batista, former president of the island republic, who disclosed simultaneously that he plans to re-enter Cuban politics this year.

"I'm not in politics now, but I intend to re-enter them if things are right when I return to Cuba," he said in an interview after arriving with Mrs. Batista from New York.

"Right now, I am not even a member of any Cuban political party. Before I make any decisions, I want to see how the June elections go."

LE MAS SPEAKS

For many years the owners of Le Mas have been in the manufacturing and wholesale business. This fact alone should be proof of our ability as wholesalers to buy merchandise at lower prices, and thereby save you good sums of money on the very same items that you will find in other jewelry stores.

True, we could gain all of the profit and thereby have identical prices as our competitors. However, we are now satisfied with the percentage of profits that we earn.

For instance, where diamond rings are concerned, we order the styles and designs made for us months in advance and we buy them at prices which would be the same as the prices paid by diamond dealers who sell the retailer the finished product. Then we buy all our diamonds loose from diamond cutters and our own diamond setter sets the diamonds for us, thereby finishing the product and it is ready for retail sale.

This eliminates two middle men's profits which is passed on to you in the form of large savings by Le Mas, "The House of Diamonds," 128 Peachtree.

DREAMS OF HALCYON DAYS

Whoo-Whoo! Steamboats Calling to Jacksonville

By BILL BORING,
Constitution Staff Writer.

JACKSONVILLE, Ga., March 12.—In the Indian summer of its life Jacksonville dreams of the halcyon days—the days when the boats passed by.

Those were the good old days—steamboat 'round the bend!—when river men pepped up the town and the wharf smelled of rosin and guano which came into and out of the town with the tides of commerce.

Those were the steamboatin' days—steamboatnig on the Ocmulgee. Down to Rocky Hammock and on past Skuffy Bluff; then Dodge's Boom, Lumber City and Brunswick and the sea.

Steamboat 'round the bend!

It's the "Little William," calling the roll for Jacksonville. A deep musical one when three miles away and three short ones at the two-mile post. And when she reared up on the whistle, sounding short and shrill, you knew she was in port.

A sweet river boat, the "Little William." Sharp-bowed, she'd pass the river cabins like a phantom.

BEAUTIFUL "IDA"

And the old "Ida," square-bowed and average size with a side wheel. Capt. J. L. Day's boat and a sight she'd be when at night she'd pull into port, "lit up like a city" and painted white with a red trim. "Ida" was old but "Ida" was beautiful.

Then there was the ship called "Wanderer." Way back in the slave days. Now "Wanderer" was no lady. She kept irregular hours and when she'd come in she kept bad company. They say she ran the blockade with slaves, a sister to the notorious sea-going vessel by the same name.

Along the river there are people who remember the steamboating days. You follow the sandy tracks through the pines until you come to C. W. Willcox's place—a mile and a half wide in both directions, he says "if you measure it caty-whampus."

As a boy, Wilcox used to ride the river boats. He'd sit in the cabins listening to the river men's tales.

Th.re's the one about the drunken captain, who sailed his ship right into hell.

He was trying to get all the speed he could out of the old engines and they kept shoveling on the fuel.

"Getting hot, sir, do you think we'd better let the boiler cool."

"Keep her steaming, we'll sail her into hell."

That's what they say happened. She blew up with 2,000 barrels of roisn aboard. River men blown in every direction, landing on rooftops and in cypress trees. One man with a bagful of money was never found.

Then there was the time when the river was in full flood. Willcox was riding in the pilot house with the captain. The boat's engines went dead and she was at the mercy of the raging waters.

CAPTAIN'S HAIR STOOD

"I've heard of people's hair standing straight up," recalls Willcox, "but first time I ever saw it. The captain's hair stood straight up."

The boat slammed into trees and that was a lucky break. They sprang with the shock. They tied the boat up to them.

Steamboat 'round the bend! They used to throw in some rich pine wood to make the smoke billow black. Giving the people of Jacksonville a run for their money. She'd lie there panting and heaving-to with the river, while they loaded and unloaded the cargo.

Sometimes, they'd invite the townspeople aboard to sample their rations.

"Best food I ever 'et," says Willcox. "And first time I ever drank lemonade was on a river boat."

Paddle-wheels beating the water, churning up the Ocmulgee. Those were the good old days, the good old river days. Jacksonville hopes they'll come back.

In the coal conference, Lewis submitted these generalized proposals:

Creation of a health and welfare fund for mine workers; adjustment of controversy affecting supervisory, technical and clerical employes; wage increases and shorter daily and weekly work week for all employes; adjustment of vacation, holiday and severance compensation; improved safety and compliance with mining, compensation and occupational disease laws; adjustment of differentials and local inequalities; elimination of inequities and abuses of existing fining and penalty provisions of agreements and rules changes.

The soft coal miners now receive $63.50 for a six-day, 54-hour week although their basic week is 35 hours.

The number of strike-idle in the nation dropped below 750,000 as more striking steelworkers reached agreements with employers.

a determined effort to divide the veterans from their families who were at home. Efforts will be made to exploit the veterans as a group, just as there have been efforts by occasional commercial crooks encountering individuals upon their return. But the efforts to divide the veterans from the rest of Georgia is more dangerous and more hurtful and more ill-intended than the efforts to swindle them out of their discharge money, Arnall said.

"Whatever is good for our whole country is good for all its people," the Governor asserted. "Whatever is hurtful to our whole country mars the appearance, prosperity and welfare of each individual in our society."

HIS STEWARDSHIP

The wartime governor gave an accounting of his stewardship in the executive office during the war. He recalled that Georgia had the best soldier vote law in the nation, and as a result of it a greater proportion of Georgia soldiers voted than did Georgia's homefolks. He expressed appreciation to the servicmen and women for thus carrying out their citizenship duties while fighting for this country.

Arnall also pointed out that Georgia had lowered the voting age to 18, with the idea that a person old enough to fight is old enough to vote.

Reporting on how the state administration sought to get the "house in order" for the veterans' return, Arnall said that the state debt has been paid; a new constitution written, the poll tax obolished, dictatorship eliminated and schools improved.

VETERANS ORGANIZE

A large crowd of white and colored middle Georgia veterans of World War II held organization meetings after the Governor spoke. The purpose of the organization is to use "our united strength for the general good of humanity, country and community, and not for the personal aggrandizement of the members."

Jack Butt, an originator of the organization, said the group will support or oppose issues where the members by ballot have shown themselves for or against such issues, but will not support or oppose any office-seeking individual.

The membership application cards distributed at the meeting asked the veterans whether or not they were registered voters.

money market and sponsors of early action pointed out that the cheap money market would go far towards offsetting the increased cost of construction at the present time.

The authority also named a special subcommittee to work out details of a pension system for employes. L. L. Gellerstedt, Morgan Blake and Cicero Kendrick will serve as members with Glenn, Arkwright and Wilson as ex-officio members.

Kendrick and Wilson will study details of a plan to establish civil service for authority employes.

Wilson was authorized to expend $15,000 in remodeling the third floor of the Steiner clinic as an operating room which he said would offer improved service until the new hospital can be constructed.

HER FATHER, BROTHER, VICTIMS

Savannah, to Frenchwoman, Is 'Vacation From Fright'

By JIM FURNISS,
Constitution Staff Writer.

SAVANNAH, March 12.—"For me, Savannah is a vacation from fright," Genevieve de Noailles, a pretty French secretary attending the Monetary Conference here, said in a quiet, matter-of-fact voice.

"Here there is such freedom of mind and freedom of action that it is hard to remember how during the war a doorbell ringing downstairs filled us with fear the Gestapo was calling or how we trembled when we saw the same person twice within five minutes behind us on the street," she said.

Her warm smile and easy friendliness hardly hinted at the chilling story of her encounters with the German police in France.

"Mine is not an unusual story," she said. "There are many persons here at the conference who can tell you more horrible tales than mine."

HER FATHER'S ARREST

In January, 1942, the Gestapo arrested Jean D'Ayer, her father, taking him to the Gestapo headquarters on the Avenue Foche in Paris. Why he was arrested, Mlle. de Noailles does not know to this day.

"It was typical," she said. "They took people and one never knew why."

From Avenue Foche, her father was sent to prison at Fresnes, near Paris, then to Compiegne. After some time he was taken by armored train into Germany to the concentration camp at Buchenwald, but later was transferred to Flossenberg, near the Czechoslovakian border, and again to Oriensberg, near Berlin. His last address was the concentration camp of Belsen, where Kramer, better known as "The Beast of Belsen," was in charge. D'Ayer died there on April 4, 1945.

Meanwhile, his wife, Mme. Holange D'Ayer, who for 13 years had been head of the French fashion magazine, Vogue, in Paris, was arrested in November, 1942, by the Gestapo, apparently in connection with her husband's arrest, and sent to Fresnes, where she was kept incommunicado for four months.

HER BROTHER KILLED

Mlle. de Noailles' only brother, 19-year-old Maurice, joined the Charolais battalion of the French Maquis in the Department of Solenois, near Lyon, in order to escape arrest. The young partisan, who had been a student in Paris until the war, was killed in October, 1944.

"Really, my own activities are not very interesting," the young French girl said. Upon insistence, however, she continued.

Her only personal trouble from the Gestapo came when they locked her in the cellar of her home following her father's arrest. At the time, Mlle. de Noailles and her family were living with their grandparents in Paris in the Auteuil district next to their old home which the German army had requisitioned.

As a member of the resistance network "Comete," however, she was in constant fear of the German police. Her duties were to help American and British aviators shot down over France to get out of Paris to some country farm where they could work or wait for an Allied plane which secretly would take them back to England.

JOINS PARTISAN GROUP

Shortly after the Allied landings in Normandy in June, 1944, Mlle. de Noailles joined her brother's partisan group where she assisted in sending clandestine radio messages to England, as well as arranging for the dropping of arms and ammunition by parachute to supply the battalion for its skirmishes with the Germans.

After two months of this rough, hit-and-run, hunted existence, she returned to the underground in Paris in time for the liberation of Paris in August, 1944.

"I only wish that all young men of France could come to America and feel the sensation of liberty," she said, earnestly. "Frenchmen need to forget the terror of war which is still deep in them."

"Worse than nightmares is meeting old friends whom one knew during the German occupation," she continued. "All we talk about is the fear we knew together. It is so wonderful to find a place in the world like America where people cannot bring these memories back because they have not lived through them."

ENJOYS FISHING TRIP

In contrast to her war years of terror, the tall, attractive brunette said she recently spent 10 hours on a fishing trip off Wilmington Island together with Mr. and Mrs. Christian Valensi, Georges Boris, and Jacques de Bresson, all members of the French delegation at the conference.

At that moment, a pleasant and distinguished looking man entered the office, picked up some papers and exchanged a few hurried words with Mlle. de Noailles before rushing out to the general conference room, situated near by in the center of the luxurious General Oglethorpe hotel.

"There's a man who could tell you a few stories about the Gestapo," Mlle. de Noailles said. "He's Pierre Mendes-France, head of our delegation. He has written a book called 'Liberty, Beloved Liberty' about his attempted escape to Africa from France and his arrest. Eventually, he managed to get to England where he joined the RAF.

As she returned to her work she somehow appeared different from the unassuming, carefree girl she had seemed when the interview began.

CHANCELLORSHIP STILL IN DOUBT

Sources close to the board of regents left newsmen in doubt as to whether a chancellor to succeed the late S. V. Sanford would be chosen today to head Georgia's university system.

One official said the election was expected to take place but another said a further delay was anticipated. Neither would allow use of his name.

The board will pass on the issuance of approximately $5,000,000 in revenue certificates for constructing dormitories at Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia.

no move toward sounding out the conference on membership.

Mendes-France said that the United States proposed the six-month extension of eligibility for dilatory signers of the Bretton Woods pacts.

After September, therefore, the Soviet and other nations in her position would have to apply as brand new applicants. Their entry would be subject to terms then imposed by the board of governors of the twin economic institutions. Voting on the boards is dominated by the United States, Britain, China, France and India—the conference "Big Five."

However, delegates said there was no intent to punish late comers, since "we are too anxious to get new members to put any penalties in the way." Besides Russia and Denmark, the list includes, Australia, Haiti, El Salvador, Liberia, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Panama, Venezuela and Cuba.

Reporters were jolted when Mendes-France, not knowing or ignoring the fact that Vinson had said otherwise, said the new executive committee would die when the Savannah session ends.

Buttonholed by reporters later, Vinson stated this was not his idea. After Monday's first meeting of the boards of governors, he said, the conference, as such, ceased to exist, and the session became meetings of the governing boards.

The action of the boards in creating the executive committee, he explained, was like any other of their decisions—it will stand until rescinded, like the choice of a site or the selection of a president for the world bank.

The behind-scenes tussle over selection of a site for the bank and fund broadened in territory. Chicago's Association of Commerce wired Vinson that Chicago desires consideration along with Washington, the choice of the American delegation and New York, the choice of Britain.

"We believe that location in the middle west would contribute to American understanding of its operations," said the telegram, "and add to its international strength and prestige."

The association said representatives of the city would welcome an opportunity to discuss specific sites.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that the social and economic council of UNO was writing to remind Vinson that UNO has expressed belief all international bodies should have headquarters near one another. Since UNO has chosen the New York area, this would amount to a recommendation for that city.

Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar, observer here for the council, said he was not expressing a personal preference but at the proper time would present UNO's ideas.

leaders in the operations were William Rupolie, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Joseph Iucolano, Brooklyn, N. Y. Rupolie was said to have served a federal prison sentence for highjacking and Iucolano also was said to have a criminal record.

The ring, according to the government, sold fake red stamps at $1 for 1,000 points to wholesalers and for as much as $8 per 1,000 to consumers. Fake sugar ration checks sold at $4 to $10 per 100 pounds of sugar.

The beginning of the black market operations were traced to March 15, McGohey said, through a meat and sugar rationing account opened at the Trade Bank and Trust Company in the name of a bona fide grocer, Angelo Fiore, but without Fiore's knowledge.

McGohey said the men counted on keeping the operation covered because the bank mailed ration account statements only every third month and the statements could be called for at the bank.

The seven corporations, all charged with purchase of forged ration coupons, were George B. Melten, Inc., New York; M. Buchsbaum & Sons, Inc., New York; Famous Trading Corporation, Brooklyn; Man-Dell Food Stores, Inc., Brooklyn; Solar Importing Corporation, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; A. A. A. UNO Meeting Postponed to March 25

NEW YORK, March 12.—(UP) The United Nations Security council meeting has been postponed from March 21 to March 25 because of travel difficulties, Benjamin Cohen, assistant secretary general, announced Tuesday.

Cohen, who will head the information department of the UNO, said the four-day postponment was deceided on because of a breakdown in flying schedules resulting from bad weather which would make it impossible for some delegates to be here on time.

Cohen said there would be an "open-door" policy on news and information and that sessions of the council would be broadcast.

"Public opinion," he said, "is the most important part of our work. We hope to provide facilities so that full knowledge of the proceedings will be available to all."

Almost without exception, Cohen said, the meeting will be open, but under the rules of UNO procedure, a majority of members can request a closed session.

Veteran Gets False Arrest Judgment

A jury in Fulton superior court has awarded $1,500 damages to James T. Johnson, of 405 Cameron street, S. E., on the ground that he was arrested and detained without a warrant by two Fulton county deputy sheriffs last July 20.

Defendant in the suit, tried yesterday before Judge Bond Almand, was the Standard Surety and Casualty Company of New York, which carries a bond on Sheriff A. B. Foster. The petitioner alleged that Foster was responsible for the action of his deputies and that the bonding company is responsible for Foster.

The deputies who arrested Johnson were Albert Battle and G. W. Culpepper. Both said they received telephone calls asking that they go to Johnson's home and arrest him. The calls, they said, purported to come from Johnson's wife. Over the telephone, they said, they were informed that a warrant had been issued for him. They said that they then looked in their file and found what they thought was a peace warrant, went to the Cameron street address and arrested Johnson.

It developed that what the deputies had mistaken for a peace warrant was only a "decree nisi" to be served on Johnson restraining him from threatening his wife.

On the witness stand, Mrs. Johnson denied she had telephoned the deputies, who were stationed at Fulton Tower. Evidence was introduced that she had filed a petition for an injunction against her husband prior to the arrest.

Johnson said he had been back from the Pacific, where he suffered injuries in the invasion of Peleliu island, only a few days when the two deputies showed up at his home late one night and took him to Fulton Tower.

VOICE OF ELECTORATE

Cover Girl Adds Throngs To Fulton Voters' List

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

Fulton county citizens, hundreds of 'em, traded their signatures on the registration rolls for autographs yesterday—and it was hard to tell who got the bargain.

Cover Girl Anita Colby who was giving with the autographs, felt pretty well set up over the throngs of 18-year-old boys and girls who decided to add their shaky baritones and shrill sopranos to the Voice of the People. But the citizens who walked away with an old bill or the back of an envelope bearing the legend, "Best wishes to Ed and good luck always—Anita Colby" were stepping pretty high and smiling mighty broadly.

"Now who'll I vote for?" demanded one smitetn youth, sidling up to the booth in front of the Rialto where the Hollywood executive and erstwhile star and Powers model, held forth in the name of good citizenship.

"That's your business," quoth Miss Colby, taking the sting out of her words with a friendly wink. "Whether or not you vote is the business of everybody who is interested in good government but who you vote for—well, you decide!"

The lad with the stardust in his eyes blinked a little and moved on to make way for more substantial citizens, the over-21 group, who just dropped by to "see how things were going."

"Sure, I'll autograph that," grinned the cagey Colby, "but have you registered yet?"

They usually got back in line, which within 10 minutes after the cover girl arrived, extended from here to there. The booth in front of the Rialto was set up by W. T. Murray, theater owner. After the registration session, which lasted from 3 to 4 p. m., Carling Dinkler entertained for Miss Colby at a reception at the Ansley hotel, where she is a guest. She was to be in Macon today and will visit several colleges and universities in the interest of the get-out-the-vote campaign.

Arnall Urges Clark To Oppose Bulwinkle Bill

Governor Ellis Arnall has urged U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark to appear before Sen. Wheeler's committee in opposition to the Bulwinkle bill.

He wired Clark yesterday that passage of the measure "will perpetrate a transportation fraud and conspiracy on the American people."

Supporters of Georgia's suit against 20 railroads before the U. S. Supreme Court to force equalized freight rates have asserted that the Bulwinkle proposal would defeat the drive for the revised rates.

Gen. Spaatz Reorganizes Army Air Forces

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—Gen. Carl A. Spaatz Tuesday reorganized the Army Air Forces and called for a vigorous recruiting campaign to build an adequate and alert peacetime force which he said will be the best insurance against future surprise attack.

The new AAF chief named the new high command that will help him build such a force and said the air army must be given equal status with the ground and naval services if it is to do its job effectively.

He also said that fighter groups would be equipped largely with jet planes and that bombers also would use jet propulsion.

And he announced that the 16 Air Forces which existed during the war will continue as entities under the several commands.

The new setup calls for three major combat commands—strategic, defensive and tactical—and five supporting commands.

Spaatz named Gen. George C. Kenney as chief of the Strategic Air Command with headquarters at Andrews Field, Md.; Maj. Gen. E. R. Quesada, as head of the Tactical Air Command at Langley Field, Va., and Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of the Air Defense Command at Mitchel Field, N. Y.

In the supporting commands, Spaatz named:

Lt. Gen. Harold L. George to continue as head of the Air Transport Command and also to serve as director of information on the new air staff.

Maj. Gen. Muir S. Fairchild to command the new Air University with headquarters at Maxwell Field, Ala.

Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining as chief of the Materiel Command, Wright Field, Ohio.

Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon as head of the Training Command, Barksdale Field, La.

Maj. Gen. Donald Wilson as chief of the Air Proving Ground Command, Elgin Field, Fla.

He also named an 11-man air staff which includes Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander and chief of air staff.

Break Seen In Purchase Of City Cycles

Break in the deadlock over purchase of 33 motorcycles for the Atlanta police department is expected when city council's purchasing committee meets in special session at 1 p. m. today.

Alderman L. O. Moseley, purchasing committee chairman, called the special meeting yesterday after Assistant Police Chief G. Neal Ellis charged that lack of sufficient equipment is crippling the enforcement bureau in its efforts to curb vehicular deaths and accidents.

Purchase of the motorcycles has been held up for weeks as result of the insistence of motorcycle riders that one make of machines be supplied and the fact that another make bid approximately $4,000 under the preferred make.

Both Ellis and Moseley have issued statements urging prompt action regarding the purchase, and it was considered likely that some compormise plan will be worked out at today's meeting through which the machines can be made available to the department.

Ellis said he should have 50 men in the motorcycle squad, but that he does not have enough motorcycles now to supply the 25 men assigned to that division. He said three of the 25 are riding a reclaimed automobile rather than doing real enforcement work.

"A wheelbarrow is better than nothing," Ellis said in urging action. "We must have machines if we are to do any substantial enforcement and the inability of the city to buy them is crippling our work. They should be bought promptly."

"If we can't get motorcycles, we should buy bicycles or something else," Moseley said in announcing the meeting. I don't care whose machine they buy, just so we get something to enforce traffic laws with."

Bids on 33 motorcycles were opened by the purchasing committee Jan. 28, this year, and after considerable bickering, the committee rejected all bids Feb. 2 after Purchasing Agent Lloyd Walker announced he had been advised that a new agency for the preferred machine would open in Atlanta and that he had been told the city might get a better price if it waited.

Planning Commission Postpones Meeting

A scheduled meeting of the city planning commission for 2 p. m. today has been postponed until 2 p. m. March 20, it was announced, and all business has been deferred until that time.

Necessity for postponement developed because of the illness of two members and the absence from the city of two others.

'LIVE' GRENADE IN MAN'S DESK

Police are now holding—rather gingerly—a hand grenade which was discovered in the desk of Carl Gorman, of the City Used Car Service, at 263 Spring street, N. W., yesterday.

The grenade greeted Gorman when he came to work. "I haven't had any arguments," he told City Detective Henley Wilbur. "I don't see why anybody should hate me that bad."

The grenade is "very much alive," according to Detective Wilbur.

Troopers End Wild Chase

Constitution State News Service

VALDOSTA, March 12.—A 30-mile chase at "above 90 miles an hour" from the Florida state line to Valdosta ended in the capture of a speedster here Tuesday afternoon by the state patrol and left a trail of excitement through several communities.

The troopers said that the driver, Castleberry, kept to the left side of the highway and ran all other vehicles, including an Army convoy, off the road, and that the speed at times approached 100 miles an hour. They said that the late model car went through Lake Park at above 90 miles an hour, and entered Valdosta at 90.

State Troopers H. W. Beckham and Carl Jeter were holding three Negroes, listed as Louis Castleberry, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Charlie Robinson, Daytona Beach, and William Abraham, of Macon, in the county jail here as the result of the wild chase.

Atlantans' Wills Filed for Probate

Wills of two well-known Atlantans, Meyer Regenstein, department store executive, and Edwin R. Haas, both of whom died recently, were filed for probate yesterday with Judge Eugene Gunby, Fulton county ordinary.

Regenstein left his entire estate in trust for his widow and children. Haas left his home at 140 Waverly way, N. E., to his widow and the remainder of the estate in trust for her during her life. Upon her death, the will provides that the estate be equally divided between two sons, Edwin R Haas Jr. and Elliott L. Haas.

Postwar City School Program To Be Begun Within 30 Days

The Atlanta board of education's postwar expansion program will jell within about 30 days, board members have advised a citizens' committee for public education.

The board yesterday told a citizens' group, headed by Walter Paschal, that it will provide for basic needs for white and Negro students.

Paschal and his committee proffered their support to an adequate bond issue to provide for the needs of all students, and the board passed a resolution thanking the citizens for appearing.

The board also:

1. Gave final approval to a contract between it and the Fulton county board of education through which the two educational systems will jointly operate a Negro vocational school on the 160-acre tract formerly occupied by Clark University on Pryor road. The site was purchased jointly and will be renovated and operated co-operatively.

2. Approved a program by which the annual Boys High-Tech High school football game will be played this year at Grant Field on Nov. 1.

3. Asked city council to authorize special police officers working under the direction of the schools to exercise police powers throughout the city rather than on school property only. Authority of special officers including those of the school department ends when the officer leaves the properties which he was commissioned to protect.

3 Get 10 to 20 Years For Robbery by Force

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court, yesterday sentenced three Negroes to serve 10 to 20 years each for robbery by force after a jury had found them guilty.

The three, Bishop Shelton, Allen Reeves and Jesse Lee Weaver, were charged with cutting, beating and robbing Thornton Johnson, a Negro naval veteran, in an alley off Whitehall street Jan. 12.

Asst. Solicitor Judge J. R. Parham prosecuted the defendants.

KENTUCKY MERCHANT PRAISES SCALF'S FOR RELIEF AND NEW VIGOR

Over-Work and Nervous Strain Had Almost Wrecked Health. Scalf's Just What He Needed, Says Wholesaler

MR. EARL C. WINGER

"I will gladly tell anyone that the almost immediate relief and the rapid gain in strength and vitality I experienced from the first three bottles of Scalf's Indian River Medicine I took has convinced me that this famous medicine will greatly help anyone in the condition I was in,' says Mr. Earl C. Winger, for 30 years a dealer in General Merchandise, both as a wholesaler and retailer, and for the past 12 years a widely known merchant and jobber at 347 South Main Street, Harlan, Kentucky. Known to his friends and family as "Chet," Mr. Winger tells of his case as follows:

"For two years I have been going down hill from over-work and nervous strain, when a tragic experience almost completely wrecked me nervously, and for the next two years I suffered intensely. I lost all desire for food and could hardly force myself to eat. Naturally, the lack of proper food caused me to lose strength and vitality, and I got so weak, nervous, and rundown that I didn't care whether I made a dollar or not. I could not sleep and I sat up by the fire all night many a night not caring what happened. I tried everything I knew with little result—even shots gave only temporary relief. My wife had been so greatly helped by Scalf's Indian River Medicine that she urged me to try it and I was so amazed at the quick relief it brought me.

"Almost immediately my appetite improved and I began to eat heartily. My digestion seemed to be so greatly aided that food gave me no distress and I rapidly picked up strength and vitality. I began to get good sleep and rest, with the result that my nerves quieted down and after only three bottles of the medicine, I feel like a new man."

Sold at Square Deal Drug Store, 10 Broad St., N. W., opposite the Arcade and May's Cut Rate Drug Store, 112 Whitehall St., next to Sterchi's, on a guarantee of your money back if not satisfied with the first bottle taken. Scalf's Indian River Medicine is an herbal medicine, without laxative effect which has brought welcome relief to thousands for more than 4[illegible] years. Accept no substitute. Take Scalf's Indian River Medicine daily.—(adv.)

Hearing Today On Cheatham

A complaint that Georgia Veterans Service Director C. Arthur Cheatham used his office to defeat in the house a senate-approved bill will be heard by the state veterans' service board today.

Several scores of representatives of veterans' organizations, legislators and other interested parties are expected to be present when the board, headed by Quimby Melton, of Griffin, airs the allegations by officials of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion against Cheatham.

VFW Commander Mayor C. Buckley, of Athens, asked that Cheatham be removed from office and requested the board to obtain the attendance at the hearing of lawmakers, State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. and others. He said these persons could substantiate the charges.

The measure would have given the board greater authority over operation of the veterans' service office.

The board is expected to meet in executive session at 11 a. m. and then hold a public hearing at 2 p. m.

Worse Than the Preventative

There is a growing national feeling, now that the administration has let down so many of the inflation bars, that all attempt at control should be terminated.

"An economy cannot progress half restricted and half free," argue many rule-of-thumb economists; "the administration having lifted many price ceilings and encouraged labor demands for higher wages, the quickest and best way to a full economy is to loose all restrictions and let all factors be free to determine their own levels."

Such an attitude admittedly characterized the Postwar Economic Policy Committee of the house of representatives when it sat down to study the nation's reconversion picture and make recommendations thereupon.

"The committee approached the problem of wartime controls with the hope of being able to recommend a summary removal of most of them and the immediate return in our postwar economy to the American way of doing business without governmental restraint," declared Chairman William M. Colmer, Democrat, of Mississippi. "But after five months of study of the many problems involved, the committee reluctantly reached the conclusion that such a course would most likely result in ruinous inflation AND WOULD REACT UNFAVORABLY NOT ONLY TO THE WAGE EARNERS AND CONSUMERS BUT TO BUSINESS ITSELF.

"The committee in its deliberations was confronted with two evils, continuation of governmental controls on the one hand and a paralyzing blow to our reconversion program on the other. It chose the lesser. THE DISEASE OF INFLATION IS STILL WORSE THAN THE PREVENTATIVES."

One has only to remember the collapse of the last postwar inflation—when 106,000 businesses went bankrupt, when factory payrolls shrank 44 per cent, when one-sixth of the nation was jobless, when 450,000 farmers lost their farms through foreclosure—to know the truth of that statement. Inflationary forces are estimated eight times as great now as then.

"The disease of inflation is still worse than the preventatives."

Let congress not forget it.

The Gardens of Brotherhood

They called them Victory Gardens during the war.

For four years patriotic Georgia families fought their own battles of the soil, spading and troweling determinedly that more food could be spared for waging a war.

Now the need is different. It is not Americans who are needful of food. It is the people of other lands who are starving, and who must share our bread if they are not to die of hunger. It is they who will have a chance at life from our men and women with the hoes.

Georgians, of course, will work as devotedly and as long, harvesting tender vegetables and fruits to feed their families, that their portions may go to less fortunate people.

But this year they should call them Gardens of Brotherhood.

Politics in the Automobile Strike

R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, has told members of the union that "union politics have figured in the General Motors strike negotiations."

According to Thomas, long at odds with Vice President Walter R. Reuther, who reportedly wants to be head of the UAW, the latter's political ambitions have delayed settlement.

Pointing out settlement of the Ford strike, Thomas pointedly asked:

"Why has Reuther not been able to settle the General Motors strike?"

This open friction in UAW will lead, inevitably, to a political showdown which will be costly to the union in public confidence. Those interested long have known that R. J. Thomas, backed by Communist members, has skillfully manipulated the animosity between Reuther and George Addes, secretary and treasurer, to keep himself in office.

Neither Thomas nor CIO's Phil Murray liked Reuther's effort to tie together wages and profits and said so publicly. Now the UAW is engaged in a campaign which will, for a time at least, divide the CIO. Some 200,000 automobile workers have indorsed Reuther for president and Addes for secretary and treasurer, seeking to get the two together. All the official weight of Phil Murray's staff will be on Thomas' side.

Meanwhile, "dat old debil" John L. Lewis is licking his chops and looking on. Greatly disappointed at the settlement of the Ford and Chrysler strikes and CIO's success in steel, he will go ahead with his raid on General Motors locals, seeking to bring them into the fold of his catch-all union "District 50."

The Lewis coal mine strike is sure to excite the public even more than did the steel and auto strikes. Lewis' demands will be radical. The AFL has lost face during the CIO successes and will give Lewis all aid and comfort as he swings the AFL into the spotlight.

The public, workers and industry pay a rather large bill for all this, but if the net result means a more orderly process of settling disputes, and if out of it comes a more responsible organized labor, it will have been worth while.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

English Imperialism

Editor Constitution: It seems to me that the extremely severe criticism which our State Department is directing toward Russian imperialism should be balanced by equally severe criticism of English imperialism. At the same time we regret to modify our own conduct in the Pacific, removing our heavy grasp from small nations and peoples whom it crushes.

We should not allow our military equipment to be used by the Dutch and the British to maintain old empires. The use of Japanese troops to put down native uprisings is a horror against which we should be outspoken. We should extend no sympathy to England in the present Indian crisis. England has exploited India for more than a century, under the successful formula of "divide and rule." Playing the differences of native religious groups against each other, she has consistently said to the outside world, "I have to stay in India, because they can't agree." It is well known that education helps people to resolve their differences peaceably. If England had been sincere she would have established a widespread system of public education in India. This has not been done.

I should like to compliment The Constitution on one of its headlines, which appeared recently. It read, "Riots Flare in India as Colonials Seek Liberty." That was superb. How different from "British Battle Rioters," or something of that sort. Your headline showed some comprehension of where we, a democratic people, should stand on this question of liberty. Bravo!

Is Stalin Bluffing?

Editor Constitution: I have not read the full text of Mr. Churchill's speech made in Missouri a few days ago. I have seen only the extracts printed in The Constitution. I heartily approve his suggestion of an "armed pact" between the United States and Great Britain. I feel sure France and China would be glad to join.

There are those who believe Stalin is bluffing. If so I am sure such a "pact" would end it. Since the end of the war Stalin has taken every thing he seems to want and that not by any one's leave. What he has done leads us to believe he will take, in the future, any and everything he concludes he wants. He should be stopped at the border NOW and allowed to go no further.

Recently, I heard a prominent Rotarian, who was present at the great San Francisco Conference, give a few character sketches of prominent figures at that conference. Among them was Mr. Molotov. It was ludicrous, yet I am sure, not exaggerated. It was the picture of a young inexperienced man stepping for the first time into mature and experienced company. His movements produce a smile behind the hands of the company. I have tried to form a mental picture of Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin sitting in conference; two eagles and a ——: but only TWO eagles.

Poll Tax and the Vote

Editor Constitution: One mistake follows another.

The abolition of the poll tax caused thousands of Negroes to register and to vote, and to control elections. Politicians will now play for the Negro vote.

The papers say that the court of appeals at New Orleans held the Negro has a right to vote in the white primary. None of this would have happened if the poll tax had remained.

Now, we are threatend with a special session of the legislature, all because of the abolition of the poll tax, which was imposed by the wisdom of the great men of Georgia.

Weep for Empire State

Editor Constitution: Writer is 62 years old and not easily moved to tears—BUT—if the thinking people of my native state don't get together and make an outstanding citizen of Georgia the governor, in the next election, instead of speculating on whether Talmadge or Rivers will sneak in, and re-do the nauseous damage to the state as under their administrations, and really let either of these characters have even a chance of election to the governorship of our proud state—then, Sir, that is when this writer will really break down and WEEP for the EMPIRE STATE of the SOUTH.

An Old House That No One Loves

Following the road from Dalton to Chatsworth, Ga., you see it on the left well before you are near it—the old Vann house.

Its red, handmade bricks are so softened by age that even at a distance they seem warmer than the raw, red clay on which the house sits. The house seems to rise out of the clay, its two tall chimneys standing up above it, etched against the sky.

It looks lonely. I think it is. Time was when tenants lived in it, spitting snuff across its wide hearths, swearing at its great wide fireplaces which required logs for real heat. It was a house which has known no affection for a long time. Not since Joe Vann and his Cherokee wife and children set out on the long "Trail of Tears" to Oklahoma has anyone loved it as a home.

Now it is empty of even the careless tenants. Its windows are broken and the dead weeds and grasses of a summer gone clutter its yard. The rains have washed away all the topsoil at the left of the house and the red clay is laid bare with a deepening ditch through it. The old house stands there, sturdy and gaunt with 156 years of defiance in its bricks and timbers. Perhaps the Cherokee woman loved it, running her hands over the Georgian mantels, climbing with awe and some fear the hanging stairway, seeing with great pride the wallpaper fetched from England. But even of that one cannot be sure about. There was always violence about the place. And fear. A violent man built it and he ruled strongly, striving to protect the rights of the Cherokees, whose blood was in his veins. In the end, when all was lost, he left with them. He came from somewhere in North Carolina, with the whisper following him that he was wanted for murder. He married a Cherokee woman and he built the house of handmade brick, freighted by river boat and ox cart to the high hill there near Spring Place where the Moravians had their mission. He sent his children to their school. He embraced, as they said then, Christianity and urged it on the Indians. He tried to make a go of it but the dice of destiny and the hunger of new settlers for land and gold were too much for him. And too much for the Cherokees, who were to know the bitterness of a broken pledge and of cruelty and imposition.

Vann House The house remains. Across the road and a field there is the old Moravian schoolhouse where the Vann children went to school. It was a courthouse and again a school.

Vann built his house in 1790. There was nothing else like it in the whole region about him and assuredly it marked him as a great chief.

It must have been a spectacle—the Indians lounging about its yard and porch, their horses grazing near it—their children playing with the Vann children. Vann was a trader and there must have been always at his house bundles of furs and perhaps some gold brought down from the streams and springs of the hills beyond.

It was a tall, fine house, and it did not have the old porch which now defaces its front or the two rear rooms in a sort of a shed. There was grass and trees about it then. One could stand on its porch and look across the small valley to Spring Place, where the little town and mission were. There, too, the Indians swarmed to trade and to look at the school and to hear the sermons from the missionaries. They came from the depths of the Cohutta mountains and the Appalachian valley.

Vann must have seen the beginning of the end in 1833 when the mission was closed by an unfriendly state and government. But he stayed on.

John Howard Payne One may assume the children laughed there and that the Cherokee woman was happy for a while. But even then there were tension and tempers and intolerance there.

There was a visitor. He was not well known. He is known today as the author of the song, "Home, Sweet Home." There was something of the rebel in him and some feeling for the underdog. It was, as it so often does today, to get him into trouble. He was a champion of the Cherokees and interested in their history. He saw John Ross in Tennessee in 1835 and he came on to Spring Place to meet Joe Vann.

The Georgia Guard, fearing and hating the Cherokees, wanting their land, were sullen and suspicious. John Howard Payne stayed with the Indians and ignored the guard. So, they arrested him and kept him for 12 days in a log cabin near the brick house. His trial was held in the house. That must have been a scene, the Indians, the guard and the lawyers, their voices rising out of the front room of the house. He was acquitted and went away, not overly impressed with Georgia hospitality or tolerance.

Three bitter years were left to Vann and the Indians. In 1838 they left, making the long march to Oklahoma, cruelly treated and abused in a manner which is not pleasant to read about even today. The lands were sold by lottery, including the brick house which was even then about a half century old.

It is still there, its ancient bricks soft and warm with a color which would enchant an artist. The earth is washing away about it; no one has for it any affection or regard, but it stands sturdy and strong, monument to a time and a day that was, and to a people who knew neither appeasement or justice.

Many Men Have Died In Search for Spices

Milton wrote of "Sabean odours from the spicy shore of Arabie the blest."

Adventurers of the middle ages, sailing their little ships into the distant lands of the East, sought spice, to bring back as cargo, because spice brought fantastic prices in the European markets, where gourmets sought it to add to the taste delights of their tables.

The spice the oldtime explorers and adventurers sought was pepper.

Today we list as spices scores of different items and the story of spice, where it is grown, the wars that have been fought for it, the dangers men have dared for it, is one of the most fascinating of all chapters in the history of mankind.

It is of especial interest now, because the peace which has come to the Oriental world means spice for the cooks of America. Have you found it difficult to buy the pepper you want in your grocery stores? The scarcity will be a thing of the past as soon as available shipping can bring the pepper from the East Indies.

Americans use more pepper than all other spices combined, normally consuming an average of almost half a pound a year per person. And nearly all the world pepper supply comes from within 500 miles of Singapore, an area held by the Japanese until the surrender.

Nutmegs For another spice with an interesting story, take the nutmeg. The nutmeg tree is the only tree which gives us two spices. Nutmeg and mace. The nutmegs are the seeds of the fruit of the tree. They are usually bought whole, to be grated in the home kitchen. Mace is a lacy covering which grows around the fruit and which is ground into a fine powder in the spice mill. It is used chiefly in pickling and in jams and jellies.

It may be legend, but it is said originally the nutmeg tree grew on only one island, the island of Banda, in the Netherlands East Indies. Europeans who first conquered that territory tried to limit the nutmeg tree to that island, so the prices would stay high because of scarcity.

However, Mother Nature doesn't play according to man's artificial rules. Birds carried off the fruit of the tree, ate the mace and dropped the nutmeg seed, which took root and grew, until the tree was propagated throughout the entire eastern tropical area.

Consider coriander, one of the first spices used by man. It is believed to have originated in India. In the Old Testament the manna which fell from heaven is described as "white, like coriander seed."

The most important source of coriander today is Morocco, though it is also raised commercially in Paraguay, Peru and Argentina. It was first taken to Europe by the Crusaders. It has a taste like lemon peel mixed with sage. It is one of the most important of 16 ingredients used in making curry powder, and is used in pickles and in candy.

American Spices Some spices are grown in the United States. New England sage is an old favorite. Cayenne and chili peppers are produced in the Southwest. California produces these, and dill seed, paprika, mustard seed, garlic salt, onion salt, basil, celery salt, marjoram, fenugreek and caraway.

There are said to be 36 principal spices. If a ship tried to collect all of them it would necessitate calls at approximately 250 ports. Centers of spice grinding are Bombay, New York, New Orleans, San Francisco and London. From these centers they are shipped all over the world to wholesale storage houses and, eventually, to the shelves of your grocery store and to your own pantry.

It is a romantic trade. Perhaps not so spectacular, today, as in the days when adventurers set forth in flimsy sailing ships to seek the valuable peppers, when pirates counted casks of that spice among the richest possible loot they could garner. But many wars have been fought for spice and our supplies of many kinds of spice have been cut off by other conflicts, not infrequently.

Here is a partial list of the spices in most demand in America:

Cumin, anise, paprika, chili, oregano.

Cardamon, sesame, sage, marjoram, red pepper, bay leaves.

Ginger, allspice, cloves, cayenne, thyme and fenugreek.

Saffron, rosemary, basil, savory and poppy seed.

Cassia, cinnamon, coriander, juniper and orris. Nutmeg and mace.

And many, many more.

Stalin's Democracy

The wolf in sheep's clothing has been known in fable and fact for many centuries. It may be as old as the story of hypocrisy and fraud.

In more simple times, when church membership gave assurance of respectability, the slickest rogues joined the most fashionable church. The rascals who robbed their country in time of war were always the most eloquent patriots. And our own disloyal citizens, working together to injure the only land that would tolerate them, have given their organizations such righteous and patriotic names as The Democratic Holy Christian Mothers' League for Liberty.

"Seeing is believing"—unfortunately — and therefore the first step in any form of swindle is a false label.

Shoddy and cotton used to be labeled all wool; cardboard was labeled solid leather; plated brass was labeled solid gold; colored and flavored water was labeled a cure for disease; rotgut prohibition whisky was given the label of some brand that was famous.

The Japs, unable to sell their inferior products in fair competition, imitated American wrappers and labels and hurt the reputation of our goods throughout the Orient.

When Roosevelt spoke of Russia as one of the free nations and listed it among the democracies fighting for freedom, he gave Stalin a brilliant idea that is troubling us now and will cause us increasing trouble in future.

Stalin brazenly stole our label. He called his system a democracy. And since the dullest person can see that his system and ours are different, he shrewdly discounted comparison by asserting that Russia has the only true democracy in the world. That is a perfect example of adding insult to injury.

Why did he do it? People pretend to be what they are not because they are shamed or handicapped by what they are. They steal the label of a good thing in hope of profiting by its reputation. There is no other reason.

Stalin and the other top Russians are not fooling themselves. They know their system is not a democracy, but a dictatorship in which the people obey orders and have no freedom, nor any voice in managing public affairs or their own destiny.

But they also know that democracy is and long has been, to all the fettered people of the earth, a synonym for liberty — a symbol of human rights and human dignity.

They may not fool many people outside Russia, but they can cause confusion, and confusion is a favorite weapon of Communists in their renewed and newly proclaimed war on capitalism—which means a war on free enterprise and free men.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

HALF MILLION VOTES
(J. D. Jones in Jackson Progress-Argus.)

With all the bars down, with teen-age youths permitted to vote, with women taking an active part in elections and colored residents registering in considerable numbers, there is no excuse for a small vote in Georgia this year. The poll tax is no longer an excuse for not voting. There is just one thing necessary—the voter must be properly registered. This should be done within the immediate future. Georgia should easily poll a half-million votes in the state primary and general election.

Mine Pay and Coal--Hike It or Lump It

The United Mine Workers have filed notice of intent to strike unless their demands are met.

That was as inevitable as the collection plate on Sunday morning.

The annual UMW ultimatum has long since replaced the first robin as the surest harbinger of spring.

March is the month when fur-bearing animals end their winter hibernation. And John L. Lewis is no exception.

Lewis won his fight for portal-to-portal pay a few years ago. And ever since mine owners have been anticipating a demand that they move the doors back.

April first has been set as the new contract deadline. After that miners won't go down unless wages go up.

Incidentally, those who foresee atomic energy replacing coal in a few years reckon without due credit to the Lewis ingenuity. The test the Navy is going to give atomic power will be but a preliminary to the one it'll get when it starts moving in on old John L.

M. L. ST. JOHN

Half Million New Voters Seen

The Young Democrats have picked out quite a job for themselves, if they expect to register even a large portion of the teen-agers eligible to vote under Georgia's 18-year-old vote law. Because a school census made a few years ago by the State Department of Education indicates that Georgia has more than 160,000 white boys and girls between the ages of 18 and 21. There are more than 95,000 Negro boys and girls in this age limit—which is significant if Negroes are permitted to vote in the Democratic primary this summer. This gives Georgia a total of more than 250,000 possible teen-age voters.

Some say that a bloc of 160,000 voters could elect a governor—that means that the white boys and girls in their teens could name the next governor, if they voted in a bloc. If all the teen-agers, white and colored, voted in a bloc, 250,000 votes probably could elect the next governor.

However, it has been four years since Georgia voted for a governor. And every year a new group of youths reached the 21st birthday, which was the old voting age. Today they are between the ages of 21 and 24. This group adds an additional 120,000 white boys and girls to the possible voters, making the total potential of new white voters about 350,000. This same group also adds about 72,000 new Negro voters, bringing the Negro potential new voters to approximately 171,000. Certainly a bloc of 350,000 white youths could control an election.

If Negroes are permitted to vote, the total potential new young voters would be approximately 525,000—greater than the total voters' registration in 1941.

Of course, no one has any idea that all of these potential young voters will register. And no one has any idea they will be used as a rubber stamp to elect a governor. But the Young Democrats are seeking to register the new citizens so that more citizens may participate in governing their state. While the youths will not vote in mass for the same candidate, it is generally agreed that young people want candidates with progressive ideas in government.

New Around Here We dropped in on the youth legislature for a few minutes during its session over the weekend. It was obvious that few, if any, of these 90 boys and girls had ever seen a real Georgia legislature in session. They were too studious of all the bills before them. The junior clerk was reading a bill when we walked in. Everything was so quiet that we were tip-toeing before we realized it, and easing into an inconspicuous seat in the rear. We peeked around, like a lady looking at other hats in church. Virtually all of the representatives had their eyes glued on copies of the bill which the clerk was reading. It would have been impossible to slip through an ill-placed comma on these boys and girls. There was no walking around, reading newspapers, or caucus between legislators and lobbyists. Lone exception to this for a moment or two was really conspicuous—conspicuous because the others were paying so close attention, and conspicuous because one could hardly expect the powerful Richmond county delegation in the real house of representatives pulling such a stunt. A boy sitting in a Richmond county seat tried to lure his pal into a game of tit-tat-toe.

We don't know just how much fixing the adult sponsors of this YMCA group did to make the young legislature's work move off smoothly. Once the assembly opened, however, the kids took the ball, and quickly showed that they had minds of their own.

We followed an exasperated woman down the capitol steps after the first session. She was burned up plenty, and she was telling her friend all about it. It seemed that some "little whippersnapper" had had the audacity to challenge a ruling by the junior speaker, Yessir. The speaker was kind of nervous, anyway, with all that responsibility on him. Then this little smart alec had to try to upset the procession by challenging the presiding officer. Just when everything had started off so smoothly. The lady suspected that the little procession wrecker had been put up to this stunt by a man advisor. It just goes to show you what "we are up against in our efforts to train the youths."

We judged from the lady's reactions that that little misguided boy had wrecked what the adult legislators would have called her "well-oiled political machine."

THOMAS L. STOKES

Ickes Minority Not To Be Ignored

WASHINGTON.—A lot of political and social change is accomplished by earnest and well-organized minorities.

Usually they are a strange assortment. Among them you see the fellow in a Windsor tie; the frustrated spinster in dowdy clothes and comical hair-do; crusading labor leaders; zealous people who keep little organizations together and hardly keep body and soul together; prominent people who have money and because of a conscience want to do something about those who do not; sons of financial giants who also have consciences about the money their fathers piled up; men and women who write books and plans or paint pictures or perform and compose music, and plain, practical politicians.

They are various, but they are kept together by a common fervor in a cause, except possibly the last group.

IF HISTORY is any guide, it was some such conglomeration that built up the Republican party after its organization at Ripon, Wisc. They were tired of the slave state control of national policy, much like the power exercised in congress today by a southern minority which holds key places, and were disgusted with the straddling of the Whigs.

They found out the nation had enough of this, too. For in only their second national election, after their initial failure with the romantic explorer, John P. Fremont, son of an itinerant French dancing teacher, they won with the gangling Abraham Lincoln.

Old newspaper friends have told of the same fiery devotion of another such band which walked out of the Republican national convention in Chicago in 1912 and organized the Bull Moose party with Teddy Roosevelt at its head. And I was witness to the convention of assorted folks who with a whoop and hurray nominated Robert M. LaFollette on a third, independent ticket at Cleveland on July 4, 1924.

ALL OF WHICH leads up to the independent political movements in motion today. In particular to the decision of Harold L. Ickes, former secretary of Interior, to be come executive chairman of the so-called Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions. That organization performed valuable service in the re-election of President Roosevelt in 1944. It might, in some ways, be a strange assortment of individuals, too, but it is fused together by a devotion to Mr. Roosevelt's principles, international and domestic, and is ready to do something about perpetuating them.

This is not to suggest that this organization is the nucleus of a third party, though it may embody the germ. But the fact that Mr. Ickes has become its managing director is significant for both old parties.

All Mr. Ickes needs is a letter head and a forum.

THERE ARE, outside of the two major parties, even more powerful political organizations, among them, the CIO's Political Action Committee which reaches down to the precinct and the shop, and the National Citizens Political Action Committee, a sort of superstructure whose membership numbers many prominent people not directly identified with labor.

Mr. Ickes, himself, told plainly what all this political organizing is about when he said that the coming congressional elections are "as important to the future of the country as any in our history."

People in these organizations are convinced of that. They may succeed in making some incumbents rather uncomfortable when the primaries and regular elections come around. That is their purpose. They are important because they believe in something and they believe in it hard.

And they are no respecters of persons.

CHANNING COPE

Mourns the Passing Of Little 'Rags'

It is hard to believe that little "Rags" is gone. This morning, March 10, he was here, pulling at our sock as we tried to get dressed. This afternoon he is no more. He fell into the swimming pool when no one was present, and was drowned. Yet he is not gone, completely. Anything, ever loved, is never lost, when remembered. And we shall always remember him. This is not to say that we understand how these tragedies come to be, nor why they have to happen. We shall remember the little scamp, however, and in the recollection of him, we shall continue to possess him, to some extent. And our recollections of him will be pleasant, for he was that kind of a puppy.

WHEN one considers the hurdles that the little feller had to get over, the handicaps of being the runt of the litter, and certain other deficiencies in his constitution at birth, it is all the more difficult to understand why he should be cut off in his youth. For he was surmounting all of his pre-natal troubles and was fast becoming a robust and vigorous doggie. His god-mother had known from the moment he arrived on earth that his lot would be a hard one, and had seen to it that he was provided with the extra care that was needed to pull him through. She caused the alarm clock to ring every three hours, day and night, as a reminder of the little feller's need for sustenance. And by careful selection of his food, and by regularity in his feeding, she got him started on the high road to health. By the time she left us, his routine had been established and all that remained to do was to carry it out. As of this morning he was as handsome a young Scottie puppy as we have ever seen. The hair on his ears and around his eyes had returned and he had gotten over that ragged appearance which caused us to give him the name of "Rags." He was built right on the ground, was very short coupled, and had those mighty shoulders and tremendous feet which go to mark a good Scottie. He carried his tail gaily, except when he was fearful of something. Then it would drop until he made up his mind that he was safe, and then up it would go again. He moved about "on springs" and was most alert.

HE WAS A GOOD DOGGIE, too, eating his vitamins and his yeast tablets out of our hand, and taking his cod liver and wheat germs oils right from the spoon. He loved everybody and especially old Burns and his own mammy, whom we call "Missy." She had weaned him, long since, for he was over four months of age, yet she never really gave him up, and continued until today to make over him and act the part of "mother." She pretended to be a little provoked with him because of his "brashness" but in reality she was very proud of him.

King Bostick, who helped us bury the remains of the little feller, told us in all sincerity that inasmuch as we had so much in the way of possessions, we were bound to lose some of them occasionally. "The man who does not have anything, can't lose anything," said King. There is logic in this statement; it is easy to reason things out in this way. We can understand it, but we can't appreciate it. We would so very much rather have little Rags with us than to try to explain away his absence. Failing in this, we can say with truth and with feeling that it is much better to have had this little feller to know and to love than never to have known him and loved him.

Development In Arizona

An eyewitness to the booms in Florida, I should be able to recognize one with the naked eye and ear. On the basis of that experience, I should say that the present congestion and enterprise in Arizona constitute a development rather than a boom. Like Florida, Arizona does a big business in the sale of warm weather in winter and there are those who believe that the time will come when the people will be reduced to the job of taking in one another's washing, which is just what many conservative souls were saying of Miami in the early twenties.

AT FIRST SIGHT, the desert country is forbidding and ominous and service men who traveled through on their way to and from the Pacific, dully eyeing the wastes of mountain and plain, the occasional weather-beaten little dobe houses and the trails leading back into the cactus, have said they wouldn't get off a train here.

Yet, in the last few years before the war and this winter, the tourist or vacation population grew rapidly and it is as certain as anything can be that this increase will continue, accompanied by a growth in facilities for somewhat less nerve-wracking pleasures than those of the Florida gold coast and for the care of invalids suffering from tuberculosis, arthritis, some heart troubles and asthma. At present the accommodations for such patients are far short of the minimum requirements and here, I suggest, is an opportunity for doctors, nurses and promoters who are willing to invest money in quiet retreats or sanitaria. The hotels, too, and tourist camps for motorists, called motels, are overcrowded and most of the dude ranches, which are, generally speaking, an elaboration of the New England farm-homes where summer boarders are offered a refuge from it all, are booked up.

It is not my business to sell Arizona to anyone, but, to my taste, which is not unique or peculiar in such matters, as the population figures show, the dry, warm summers and the dazzling beauty of the sunsets are an irresistible combination. I was one of those who, seeing speculators buying and swapping options and titles to land, swamp and sea bottom in Miami twenty years ago, believed that when the craze was over most of the real estate would go back to palmetto and rattlesnakes, alligators and mosquitoes. When last I saw Miami and the beach, they had grown into a metropolis whose principal business was the sale of climate and luxury at prices beyond belief, but with a solid foundation of air and sea commerce and some manufacturing and a background of agriculture. A few boom communities actually did decay, but only a few, and even some of those failures were reclaimed after a few years as restless Americans shifted from old surroundings to new, which is still our way.

ARIZONA'S basic business is mining and contrary to a general impression among those who think of the desert as a waste fit for no good use, the desert has been made to bloom in some areas with an agriculture of formidable importance.

Who of those in the drifts and sleet of the east today would imagine that in the outskirts of Tucson, there were trees heavy with citrus and sweet peas, daisies and violets in bloom on small tracts of utter desert, some of them subdivisions of claims pioneered by veterans of the first World War? These are the attractions, the luxuries, which draw the winter vacation trade with money to spend on their pleasure and this class of Americans seems to be of a reliable permanence, though the individuals do change, for southern California and Florida both banked on their business and prospered as a result.

IT HAS SEEMED to me from the beginning of my experience that Arizona and particularly Tucson, the university city, are more intellectual, more interested in the arts than either the old residents or the boomsters and tourists were in Florida. I remember inquiring about Miami for days for a history of Dade county and a biography of Maj. Dade, who explored the Everglades, without success until, one night, a young woman who was press-agent for a big gambling house and floor show, and a stranger in town, at that, loaned me one.

I HAVE previously told of the remarkable growth of small homes on the desert land about Tucson. There are no mansions among them but neither are there shacks and this all indicates to me a development of a new region of solid citizenship who will not have to take in one another's washing, after all, but like other American communities, will find work and opportunities and make good use of an area hitherto neglected or unknown which any European people would gladly pioneer as a new "living space."

It's Spring and Winter In the Okefenokee

OKEFENOKEE.—It is a strange time in the big swamp, a transition time between winter and spring. The alligators are out, and on every log the gun-metal armor plate of the turtles gleams dully as they take the sun. That is a spring sign. But the otters have not yet gone into the deep dwelling places beneath the banks where they take refuge when warm weather comes.

It is spring and winter for the birds. The osprey and the great blue heron are moving about with the restlessness of spring, finding their nests. But the northern duck, the black duck and the gray mallard, the bald pate and the spoonbill, the canvas back and the redhead, can still be seen on the prairies, feeding on paint root and lily seeds. The migrations of spring are not yet in full flight, though the white egret is pluming out in his mating finery.

It is spring and winter in the scrub and on the water. The huckleberries are blooming white as snow, and the pollen-laden golden spear of the neverwet shines on its shaft of white and crimson. But the tiny white bells of the airplant, and the pink blossoms of the fetter-bush, the old "hooraw-scrub" of colloquial phrase, have not yet come to their springtime fragrance.

The bear still sleeps in his winter cave, and the water runs black in the boat runs, not yet covered with its springtime iridescence, that powder of pollens and tiny seeds which dust it in the spring. Bees bustle to every new opening flower, but the honey in the comb is still the dark red honey of huckleberry and ty-ty, sweet but sharp and burny in the throat, and the hives must be robbed to make room for the clear, bland, amber honeys of spring.

Spring Not Far Off The cypress still stands stark and bare of leaf, and the alligator's eye is still cold and clear. But soon the tops of the cypress will break into feathery green, and in the eye of the gator will come a faint reddish glow, showing that in his slow, cold saurian pulse there is beginning to stir the tender passion of love. Then the bear will be out with her tumbling cubs and the fawn will be walking the trembling earth of the hammocks along with the doe, and Lem Griffis, the old swamp angel, will take off his shoes and throw them away, and spring will be in, full tide and triumphant, over all the great swamp from Folkston to Fargo.

GALLUP POLL

Observing A-Bomb Tests

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J.—The American public is opposed to inviting observers from foreign countries to watch the Navy atomic bomb tests in the Pacific this summer.

Moreover, a large majority oppose giving any report to other nations on the results of the tests, once they have been made.

People with college training included in the survey are not so overwhelmingly opposed to either proposal as are persons with high school training or less.

The opinion of World War II veterans on these questions does not differ significantly from that of the rest of the population.

The question of permitting observers from foreign countries to watch the tests and the issue of making available data on results have been reported under discussion among the joint chiefs of staff, the secretaries of State, War and Navy.

The questions in today's poll:

"This summer our Navy plans to make tests at sea to find out how effective the atom bombs would be in naval warfare. Do you think that representatives of other nations should or should not be allowed to watch these tests?"

Replies:

	Should	Should Not	Undecided
National	26%	66%	8%
By Education:
College	45	49	6
High school	31	63	6
Grammar or no school	19	72	9

2. "Do you approve or disapprove of giving other nations a complete report of the results of the tests?"

	Approve	Disapprove	Undecided
National	28%	63%	9%
By Education:
College	44	50	6
High school	33	59	8
Grammar or no school	21	68	11

Public sentiment on the present questions is consistent with earlier findings showing the public's conviction that the United States should not share the atom bomb secret with other nations.

A majority, in a survey in October favored keeping the atom bomb under U. S. control rather than under the United Nations Security Council.

This opinion is held in spite of the belief among a majority in the United States that the secret of the atom bomb cannot be kept, that other nations eventually will develop atom bombs.

"Japanese strikers on street car lines continue on their jobs but collect, from the fares, sufficient funds to pay themselves wage increases."—News item.

Within the last few years, perhaps, we've learned much more about the Japs
Than in the hundred years gone by, since Perry went and found them
A stubborn, isolated race that settled in an island space,
So secretive that many legends have sprung up around them.

From what we read, it now appears they hadn't much above the ears
And never fully took their place among the leading nations;
They might have known a little bit, but where they made their biggest hit
Was in the old and clever art of doing imitations.

And now, as usual, we find they still are trailing far behind—
We're in the twentieth century, they're in the Middle Ages,
And older ones among us know, how in the days of long ago,
Conductors used to tap the till to supplement their wages.

But we have progressed far since then, conductors now are honest men,
Although their virtues seem to make some of them melancholy—
The Japs will all be honest men and never pinch the crooked yen
When they get those little boxes on the front end of the trolley!

A Stupendous Production

FORT VALLEY.—Come one, come all! The curtain has risen on one of the greatest shows of all times. Gigantic, stupendous, colossal. Never before has there been a cast of such breath-taking beauty, such springtime loveliness. Not one hundred, not one thousand, but millions of luscious beauties parading before the eyes of an appreciative audience.

PRODUCTION, settings and costumes, all by master showmen, Peach county's best, (and that means the world's) our annual peach blossom review is in full swing. With lavish hand the producers are offering for your enjoyment a vision of utter bliss. Mile after mile of gorgeous peach blossoms, their petals softly blending into masses of heavenly pink against the blue of the sky. And beneath it all a gently rolling carpet of emerald green. If it's pageantry and color, if it's a glimpse of fairyland you are wanting, here it is!

But don't let that fool you. The play is on but this is only the first act. Opening to the wild applause of admiring spectators anything can happen and frequently does, before the curtain falls on the finals. Backers are quaking in their boots and it's a stage fright that will give them cold chills right on through the third act. For, friends, this show is put on by professionals. It's class A, four bells, and whatnot. Even the critics love it. Selected with painstaking care the principals have undergone months of intensive training. An all-star performance, it is also studded with shiny coin of the realm. No expense has been spared and the verdant green surrounding those little beauties is but a faint reflection of a sizeable wad of Uncle Sam's folding money. And the whole thing is loaded with dynamite.

THEY LOOK like angels' playthings, those little pink petals, but they're fit company for a thousand imps. Bland and deceptively innocent they have temperament to burn. Coax and coddle, day in and day out, they demand the best and get it. Feverish attendants toil unceasingly, fetching and carrying, eternally seeking to cater to their whims and fancies. Carefully and reverently they are sprayed with costly ointments; no blemish must mar that flawless complexion. One minute symptom of inward disturbance and a staff of specialists gathers for solemn consultation. Delicate as the wing of a butterfly, a chill wind will cause them to shiver and die; soft as a baby's whisper, one icy drop from the heavens will leave them bruised and broken.

PEACH BLOSSOM TIME is now playing to capacity audiences and nothing can diminish the wonder of the yearly miracle. But what a business, forever at the mercy of the elements. An untimely clap of thunder and whole orchards are subject to nervous prostration. Likewise their owners. And what a gamble. When fortune smiles the box office receipts are terrific but just let the fickle jade turn her head and the curtain goes down with a flop that can be heard around the world.

Churchill's athletic valedictory in a Missouri gymnasium was a bit muscular. Six years ago Winnie announced his intentions of fighting on the beaches and in the streets. He has added the Ozarks to that bank holiday.

Winnie and I went to different schools together but I agree with him on the disposal of the atom bomb. I mark his paper perfect and five for neatness. That's one time he is as correct as society manners.

When it comes to international elusiveness Winnie goes further back than the wiggle on a snake. That's all the way. He realized something we do not. And that is America is the most powerful organization ever coagulated since Noah chased that third ape off the gangplank.

Of course, Winnie's petition for equal partnership is the old Bowery formula. We furnish the money and he furnishes the experience.

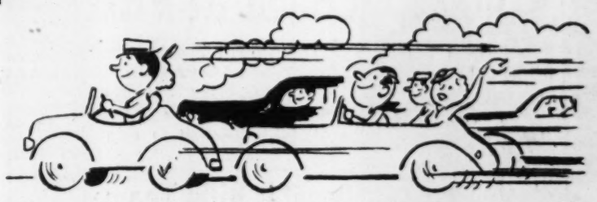
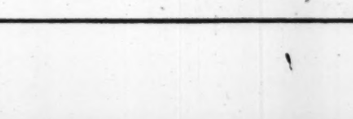
WORDS OF WISDOM FROM A TEEN-AGER:

"No tourist is going to stop in a city of dirty streets, poorly painted houses, and dirty public buildings!"



THUS WROTE Billy Gregory of Griffin—words written in his entry in our recent Better Home Towns letter-writing contest on the tourist business—an entry that won for Billy a $500 Victory Bond, top prize.

This seventeen-year-old high school senior has the right idea—the first step is to clean up a city . . .



plant flowering shrubs and small trees at its entrances . . . inspire the citizens to become friendly, cordial . . . provide clean, attractive sleeping accommodations . . . feed 'em properly . . . and last, but not least, give the tourist something to see.

Words of wisdom from a teen-ager—words, indeed, that every city, town and hamlet in Georgia can heed with profit!

AN ATTRACTIVE TOWN IS LIKE A MAGNET—travelers go miles to places where they like to stop. Those places are towns that are clean, attractive and progressive. Will your town be on the "let's stop" list of tourists—or will they race through it and on to a town that has more to offer?

There's money—plenty of money—in the tourist trade, make no mistake about that! Tourists WANT to spend—and they don't particularly count the cost when they're off on a pleasure trip, regardless of whether it's for the day, week-end or full vacation!

So it's up to you—and all the other folks in your town—to decide whether or not you want to cash in on some of that new income. You'll all profit! The time is right at hand when you have to DO SOMETHING ABOUT YOUR TOWN—or be lost in the parade of progress.

Get busy now—find out what you can do to make your town attractive to tourists—what you, and your town, can do to offer good food, good lodgings, interesting things to see, for the great hordes of tourists that will soon be traveling in Georgia. Traveling—with money to spend!

HERE'S HOW: Write for the free booklet that explains the Georgia Better Home Towns Program.

It's a plan of action—that tells you why, and what, and how, to do the simple things to make your town a BETTER home town. Or, if there is a Better Home Town Committee already at work in your community, it tells you how to put your shoulder to the wheel to give them a hand. It'll pay you—and your town—a hundredfold!

So send for the Georgia Better Home Towns booklet—it's chockful of many thought-provoking suggestions and ideas. Address a postal card to Georgia Power Company, Box 1719, Atlanta (1), Georgia.

25 for Chandler ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12.—The New York Yankees, an amazing combination of prewar strength, are three weeks ahead of their grapefruit league rivals at this stage of the game.

It is being freely predicted that Spurgeon Chandler, of Georgia, will win more than 20 games. He is one of the most talked about players of the spring because of the way he has pitched into the training routine, both in Panama and here.

The Yanks have only one Chandler but the other pitchers are winning this spring and the development of the team as a whole amazes seasoned observers.

Atlantans are going to see only one major league team in exhibition games. Earl Mann knew what he was doing in making the Cracker opponents Larry MacPhail's Yankees. They're actually ready to open the regular season now.

Granny Rice, who has been following baseball since the days of hoop skirts, says he never has seen a team so much on the ball in the middle of March.

"I'll give Chandler a chance to win 25 games," Granny pointed out today as the Yanks warmed up to engage the World Champion Detroit Tigers. "I don't know whether it's good for a team to advance so rapidly, but I'll take a team that can hit as the Yankees do. It's going to be tough to get them out."

The dean of American sports writers, now on a tour of major league training camps, offers Joe McCarthy's powerhouse as the combination to beat in the American League scramble.

Two things impress one and all concerning the Yankees. They have unusual defensive strength to go with the hitting. Phil Rizutto has returned from the service as an ace shortstop. He started five double plays in a recent game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Tough to Get Out Steve O'Neill, who'll match his Irish wits against Joe McCarthy's during the campaign, already has jumped off the deep end with a statement that he can't see how the Detroit club can be stopped in their bid to repeat. It may be that in Lakeland, the land of lakes, he picked a good spot for his high board exhibition.

Later on, Yankee adherents feel, O'Neill may be looking around for a soft spot to cushion the fall of the champions. But it's O'Neill's story and he's sticking with the champions. He won't concede the Yankees a thing in hitting, fielding or pitching.

A three-cornered race involving New York, Detroit and Boston seems logical. These three seem to have a big edge on the rest of the field.

But the Yankees are the talk of the town.

"How are the other teams going to get them out?" supporters are asking.

Patent Combinations It isn't possible to improve very much on an outfield of Keller, DiMaggio and Henrich.

A pert infield, one of the best in defensive circles, will embrace Stirnweiss at third, Rizutto at short, Gordon at second and Etten at first.

Chandler will take care of his share of the pitching and Yankee power will be quite an assist to the efforts of the other hurlers. Silvestri and Dickey are the catchers.

Pitching, naturally, is a big thing in baseball. But so are defense and punch. These two items can put a team on top.

There is only one disturbing element to those who have been following the diamond sport over a long period of time. They wonder if it's good for a team to be trained so fine this far in advance of the season.

The Yankees got away to a flying start in Panama and reached sunny St. Petersburg in top condition. They haven't lost a day of training since they started several weeks ago.

The situation doesn't disturb Manager McCarthy, one of the top pilots of all time.

"What's wrong with being on the ball, whether it's spring or fall?" he sagely answers questioners.

Gordon Fits In There has been much talk and many words written about Joe Gordon not making the grade at second base, but it doesn't coincide with the views of Frank Graham and Grant Rice, who are in a position to know.

"If Gordon doesn't make second base there won't be any hemp in Manila, no tea in China and a dead heat in the Kentucky Derby," Rice observed. Graham, his old running mate of the sports front, nodded assent.

Stirnweiss had been regarded as a likely keystone mate of Rizutto. Gordon hasn't gone back to the extent that he can't handle the job, however. Stirnweiss makes a potent third baseman and rounds out a crack infield, perhaps the best in the American League.

At the moment St. Petersburg, Fla., is the capital of baseball. All the important teams of both the National and American Leagues, excepting Brooklyn and the Chicago Cubs, are training in the vicinity.

It's a great thing for west Florida, and west Florida people support the games in terrific numbers.

CRACKERS' ACE FIREMEN—Good relief pitchers are a must for a winning ball club, and Manager Ki Ki Cuyler feels his 1946 Atlanta Crackers are fairly safe in that department. Cuyler has Shelby Kinney (left), 16-game winner in 1945, and Forrest Thompson (right) ticketed for relief duty. The former is a right-hander and the latter a southpaw, an ideal combination for saving ball games in late innings.

Gearhart Slams 425-Foot Homer

By F. M. WILLIAMS,
Constitution Staff Writer.

CRACKER TRAINING CAMP, GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 12.—Lloyd Gearhart, fleet centerfielder who faces tough competition to retain his centerfield job with the Atlanta Crackers, hit the longest ball of spring training today when he slammed one of Lester Elledge's fast pitches 425 feet over the leftfield fence as the Byscos defeated the Scotts, 6 to 4, in the second game of a double-header in the spring training camp league.

Gearhart, only man back from last year except Pitchers Shelby Kinney, Forrest Thompson and Mason Leeper, must beat out Buddy Bates, who was a Cracker star before the war, if he expects to hold the job he has handled so well for one full year and part of another.

OUTSTANDING HITTER

His hitting all spring has been great. Cracker Manager Kiki Cuyler has been particularly impressed with the distance Gearhart has been getting and today's home run emphasized the fact that he has more power at the plate than ever before.

It may well be that the Bates-Gearhart duel will affect one of the other two outer gardens, with one or the other centerfielder being moved to another spot in order to get the utmost out of the Cracker outfielders.

By beating LeGrant Scott's club, the outfit managed by Steve Bysco managed to stay in a tie for first place in the training camp loop with Chick Autry's nine, which won a 5-to-4 decision over Bob Smith's team in the morning half of the daily double-header.

Autrey and Bysco have won two games each while the other two teams both have lost twice.

Although Gearhart's tremendous blow was the highlight of the afternoon game, Roy Hartsfield's hitting caused Cuyler considerable satisfaction.

The fleet Hartsfield got a double, single and an inside-the-park home run in four times at bat. His homer was hit almost to the right centerfield fence and he made it all the way home only because of his tremendous speed.

In the morning, the Smiths outhit the Autreys, 10 to 9, but lost the game when Al Fazzio beat out a bunt, went to second on a sacrifice, stole third and came home on a bad throw by the catcher.

TWO HOMERS NULLIFIED

Two home runs, one in each game, were nullified by runners failing to tag first base. In the morning, "Red" Mathis, who had pounded out a triple the time before, hit a tremendous drive to the centerfield fence in the sixth inning but got credit for no hit when he missed first by a foot.

Jimmy McCarnes, promising young outfielder, hit a drive into the same spot in the afternoon and circled the bases, but he, too, forgot to touch first and was called out.

Today's pair of games produced the most hitting of any in spring games and verified Manager Cuyler's prediction of yesterday that by the end of the week the batters will be as far advanced in spring work as the hurlers, who have been turning on the steam since the middle of last week.

Wednesday morning calls for an intra-squad game between the Byscos and the Scotts but in the afternoon the Smiths and Autrys will combine to take on the University of Florida nine, coached by Sam McAllister, formerly of the University of Georgia.

Sports Arena Five Upsets Wood River

Atlanta Sports Arena, with Ralph Hamilton setting the pace, knocked off third-seeded Wood River, Ill., in a hot quarter-final engagement last night in the American Basketball Tournament at the Sports Arena. Top-seeded Dow Chemical, of Midland, Mich., second-seeded Camp Atterbury, Ind., and fourth-seeded Fort Benning, Ga., won handily.

In tonight's semifinals Sports Arena meets Camp Atterbury at 7:30 and Fort Benning faces the formidable Dow Chemical quint at 9. Finals and consolation finals are set for Wednesday night.

The strong Dow Chemical outfit swamped Fort Dix, N. J., 98-41, after piling up a halfway lead of 43-18. The Midland, Mich., team had things all its own way throughout and a substitute, Martens, was high point man with 21.

Sports Arena, led by by Ralph Hamilton, upset the third-seeded Wood River, Ill., team, 67 to 61, in a thrilling game. Hamilton, who scored 31 points, was hurt in a spill, but returned to the game. Earl Dodd, who was Wood River's high-scorer with 22 points, suffered a back injury in the last minute of play. Sports Arena led by three points at the half, 30-27.

Fort Benning's fourth-seeded Snipers moved into the semifinals by taking Fort McClellan over the jumps, 74 to 58, in the first game on last night's program. The Snipers led by 34 to 27 at half-time. Slip Kersulis headed the winning attack with 22 points, while Emley was tops for Fort McClellan with 26. Benning beat Laurel, Miss., 62-32, Monday night.

Second-seeded Camp Atterbury, Ind., knocked off the Green Springs Navy, Fla., 56-39, in a game in which the second-seeded Indiana team led all the way.

The Floridians trailed at the half but put on a spurt that gave them only a 37-34 disadvantage with eight minutes to go. However, Otis Spears, Camp Atterbury forward, got hot and the Indianans increased their lead to win handily.

Russell Track Squad at Work

By RUSSELL MUSGRAVE

Russell High's 60 track candidates have kept Coach C. V. Maddox busy the last week trying to build up another stellar track team that will do the Wildcats proud in the annual NGIC track meet to be run the first week in May. Last year the Wildcats entered the final event in the meet in a tie with North Fulton—the championship resting on the results of the relay. Buddy Fowlkes showed his heels to the Russell anchor man to hand the cup to North Fulton in a grand fashion, giving the Wildcats the well-earned runner-up honors.

Coach Maddox has six lettermen back from that stellar 1945 team. Topping the list is Harry Garrett, sprinter par-excellence, who defeated and once tied the star North Fulton dashman, Fowlkes, in the 100-yard dash last year; Kenneth Pritchett, sprinter; Edward Barge, relay and hurdles; Don Harbin, 440 runner; and two milers, Henry Rountree and Don Barker. Other leading cinder candidates are Jack Carter and Ralph Stamps in the sprints and pole vaulting; Frank Wheeler in the high jump and pole vault; Harry Bailey in the half-mile, and Griffin Patrick in the broad jump.

The Wildcats' B track team have a dual meet with GMA B team March 22 on the Russell track the same day that GMA entertains Tech High's track team on the GMA track. Other track meets scheduled finds the Wildcats hosting Tech High April 5, North Fulton invading Russell April 9, Russell traveling to GMA April 17 Two other meets are still in the contract stage.

Hospital, Dental Lab Join Forces

Mediators in various disputes will find encouragement in the announcement that one of the teams in the 1946 Fort McPherson softball league will be made up of players from the Station Hospital and the Central Dental Laboratory—the two teams which fought tooth and nail from start to finish during the 1945 season.

Lack of personnel is the reason for this ironical merger. The dental lab had 75 men last year; now it's down to 17. The hospital detachment has experienced a similar reduction.

Another merger combines the military police of the fort and of the city of Atlanta.

Agrippa Wins Derby In Atlanta Field Trials

By BERT PRATHER

Agrippa, white and lemon pointer owned by Dr. Gilbert Fisher, of Birmingham, came back yesterday to avenge his Saturday's defeat in the amateur derby, to walk off with top place in the open derby, as the Atlanta Field Trial Club's spring meet went into its fifth day.

Agrippa, who also copped the Continental Derby at Waynesboro, ran the course well, showing good hunting ability and making two finds, which were handled in jam-up style. Agrippa's win earned the better part of $435 for his handler, John Gates.

The judges had a hard time deciding on the second-place winner, as Tip Top Bob, owned by E. J. Laney, of Beaver, Pa., and Duration Bob, owned by John Shaw, of Jacksonville, had to be called back for a second series.

In the first heat neither of the dogs made finds, but showed enough class to be called back by Judges Roy Persons and O. E. Massey. Then in the second series Tip Top Bob made a find after a great race and was adjudged second-place winner.

Bob's lone find clinched the second spot for him, but a few minutes later after the dogs had been called up, Duration Bob also had a find, but it couldn't be counted. He was placed third.

Tip Top Bob, a black and white ticked pointer was handled by Herman Smith and Duration Bob, a liver and white pointer, was handled by the famous George Crangle, of Waynesboro.

Eight braces were run off in the $1,000 open all-age stake, but for the most part the performances of the first 16 dogs was not too impressive. Torchbearer, Blizzard's Cavalcade and Texan Boy may have scored with the judges yesterday, but something may happen in today's 14 braces which will completely change the picture.

Torchbearer had two finds and one stop to flush, Texan Boy and Blizzard's Cavalcade had one find each. Big going Louisiana Hayride, owned by E. E. Hawkins and handled by Earl Crangle, made the best run of the day and could get into the running on class. Hayride, a first year all-ager, handled perfectly in addition to his beautiful run. Tarheelia's Lucky Strike ran in the last brace and had one point, which was unproductive.

The ninth brace of the open all-age will be turned loose at 8 a. m. today at the club's Adamsville casting grounds and the remaining 13 braces should be completed about the middle of the afternoon.

JONES SLICES FOUR FROM PAR FIGURES

Bob Jones, although long retired from active competition, is still pretty much the master of the East Lake course.

Playing in a foursome with Dr. Pierce Harris, Atlanta's golfing minister; Watts Gunn, who was runner-up to Bob in one of his National Amateur wins, and Pro Harold Sargent, the old grand slammer toured the Lake course in 66 strokes yesterday afternoon to nip par figures by four.

Bob went out in 34 and came back in 32. He had one birdie and eight pars on the front nine and then turned on the heat in the stretch to collect birdies on the 15th, 16th and 17th holes.

Heath's Bat Helps Senators

HAVANA, March 12.—(AP)—Washington shapes up as a dark horse in the American League race with added power from big Jeff Heath and continued fine pitching making them a dangerous threat.

Just how dangerous and how much of a threat remains to be seen but the "Cinderella Boys" of 1945 rate consideration. Nobody gave them a tumble last spring because they looked like the same team that finished a badly beaten last in 1944 but they were up there on the neck of Detroit at the finish and almost grabbed all the money.

Heath's performance may be the key to the Senators' fate. The husky native Canadian is the kind of slugger Washington was crying for last fall. He can break up a ball game with one mighty swish of his bat but, to put it mildly, there always has been an uncertain quality about him.

Big Jeff was dissatisfied in Cleveland, didn't like the ball park, didn't like the management, didn't like anything. Still, he has been a most valuable hitter.

Manager Ossie Bluege honestly thinks his club has a chance with hitters like Buddy Lewis, Cecil Travis, Stan Spence, Mickey Vernon and Heath to drive in the runs.

Washington probably will go to the post with only one right-handed hitter in the starting line-up, Jerry Priddy at second base, but that doesn't worry gray-thatched Ossie.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PARIS, March 12.—(AP)—The French cabinet Tuesday approved a new note to the United States and England in support of its contention that the Franco government of Spain is a threat to peace and should be so considered by the United Nations Security Council.

Elements of four other Nationlist armies already are operating in Manchuria. The Chinese Communists claim to have an aggregate force of 300,000 there.

It was understood there would be no attempt by Peiping truce headquarters to extend its jurisdiction into any Russian-controlled Manchurian areas. The truce teams from headquarters will, however, cover all terrtiory coming into Chinese hands — whether it is taken over by government troops, Communists or forces of the "autonomous republic" of eastern Mongolia.

In south China, Communists were reported agreeing to withdraw their forces from the southernmost province of Kwangtung, where the government commander, Gen. Chang Fah-Kwei, has refused to recognize their status.

Berry Indicted On Income Tax Evasion Charges

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 12. (AP)—U. S. District Attorney Horace Frierson announced Tuesday the indictment of George L. Berry former U. S. senator from Tennessee and labor union official, on charges of income tax evasion for the years 1939-40-41.

A three-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury, Frierson said, charged that Berry attempted to evade a large part of income tax due the U. S. government by filing "false and fraudulent" returns for those years.

The indictment, he added, asserted that Berry owed the government more than $19,000 for the three years.

Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, has appeared before U. S. Commissioner H. B. Barnett at Knoxville and posted $5,000 bond for appearance in Nashville next September for trial, Frierson said.

Teach Tolerance in Schools, Urges Christian-Jew Leader

The measure of brotherhood is easy to take. The Bible prescribes the formula:

"Search me, oh God, and know my heart . . . Try me and know my thoughts. See if there be any wicked way within me."

Constitution Staff Photo
DR. EVERETT R. CLINCHY
"Let's Live Together"

Unfortunately, an honest application of that Scriptural psychoanalysis reveals that there is a little Hitler hate and hostility in the best of citizens, in the opinion of Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The leader in the tolerance movement, in Atlanta to spur his association's campaign for $50,000 in Georgia during 1946, spoke Tuesday at a luncheon at the Biltmore hotel, where Walter H. Rich, co-chairman of the Atlanta chapter's executive committee, was host to a group of workers.

A-BOMB'S EFFECT

The danger of intolerance, Dr. Clinchy says, has changed with the atomic bomb. That weapon alone has made international friendship a condition of sheer survival.

"There is no possibility of living with Russia, China or the other countries of dissimilar people if we don't learn the ABCs of group relations here in the United States," Dr. Clinchy emphasized. "We have one country of 47 different nationalities, every religion and color. Yet our slogan is E Puribus Unum. That is the idea we have got to give to the One World."

The Conference of Christians and Jews, entering its 18th year at the peak of its influence, with such leaders as Harold Stassen, general chairman; the presidents of four radio networks on its radio committee; Advertising Man of the Year James Young as its advertising counsel, believes education is the real key to tolerance and understanding.

DR. CLINCHY'S PROPOSAL

Dr. Clinchy proposes that the school system of Georgia make education in intergroup relations a byproduct of the curriculum in every school and college.

"Yet youngsters studying physics understand the contribution of physicists from every religion and race," he said. "When studying literature, or music or the arts, let them be conditioned emotionally to friendly, automatic responses to people who are different in manners and appearance and background.

"The primary job of everyone is to get rid of the sin of contempt and arrogance. Nations do it in heightened nationalism. Races do it in emphasizing racialism. Religions must forget their ecclesiastical existence and worship the God who rules us all."

Dr. Collins Urges School Officials To Aid OPA Board

In response to an appeal from J. W. Studebaker, United States commissioner of education, Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, has urged county school superintendents and other local school officials who can spare the time to serve on local OPA boards as a means of contributing to the economic security and prosperity of their communities.

"I am informed by the price administrator that there is urgent need at the present time for more school people as volunteers to work on or with OPA boards," Commissioner Studebaker said in a telegram to Dr. Collins.

The commissioner explained that during the war school people helped greatly to hold the price line by volunteering to serve on local price and rationing boards. As of last Dec. 31, 4,000 educators were serving as member of some 2,200 local boards throughout the country.

In addition, many other teachers and school administrators were aiding in the development of better understanding of the dangers of inflation, Dr. Studebaker said.

Road Funds Earmarked

Three million dollars has been allocated for maintaining Georgia's paved roads. Gov. Arnall yesterday handed the state highway department this extra money from his emergency fund to "protect the state's investment in paved roads.'

Bernard To Speak At Atlanta U.

Dr. Luther L. Bernard, director of guidance and personnel at Lindenwood College, will be at Atlanta University March 18-21, to serve as guest professor in sociology.

In addition to holding seminars and individual conferences with students, he will address an open forum in the exhibition room of the University library at 8 p. m. Wednesday, March 20. His subject will be "New Dynamics in World Relations." The public is invited.

Negro Voting Stirs Little Excitement

Georgians seem to be accepting Negro voting in the Democratic primary this summer without a great deal of excitement.

This became evident yesterday when the cries for an extra session of the legislature to keep the ban on the Negroes died out, and more Georgia counties announced that Negroes would participate in their primaries.

Gov. Arnall disclosed that "not a single soul" had asked him to call the legislature into extraordinary session to amend the election laws.

To the contrary, Arnall said he had received numerous letters from points throughout the state urging him not to call such a session. Prominent citizens in many counties advised the chief executive to leave the election laws alone.

G-MEN COMING?

At the same time, political observers speculated that Georgia would be filled with federal agents this summer watching for violation of civil liberties laws. They said that any election manager who refuses to permit a person to vote because of his color faces the possibility of criminal prosecution.

Many letters to the Governor said that Georgia should comply with the federal appellate court's decision stating that the Negro is entitled to vote in primaries. Others expressed fear that Georgia's county unit system would be wrecked by any changes in the election laws, and this would permit the big cities to rule the state.

Observers expressed the belief that the Muscogee county Democratic committee case would be appealed to the United States supreme court for a final decision. The Middle Georgia district court and the New Orleans circuit court of appeals upheld the Negro's right to vote in primaries.

MEETING IN EIGHTH

While Negroes have voted in primaries at Athens and Valdosta and will vote in Glynn county, a meeting in Congressman John Gibson's district indicated that the eighth congressional district may abolish the county unit system of election and try to eliminate Negro voting. Many congressmen already are elected by popular rather than by the county unit system.

While Arnall said he had not received any requests for a special session to change the voting laws, he said he had received many requests for a legislative meeting to lift the ban on a governor succeeding himself.

Nazis in Key Jobs, Asserts Essen Mayor

ESSEN, Germany, March 13.—(AP)—The new mayor of Essen, a Communist, says flatly that German industry still is shot full of Nazis in such control that they wield a whiphand over the ordinary worker.

The mayor, Heinz Renner, has been fleeing the Nazis since 1933. He was in concentration camps in France and Germany with such a record of animosity to Hitler that British occupation authorities quickly approved his nomination as mayor.

Renner, the first Communist to become the chief municipal officer of any postwar German city of this size, said he is convinced that "denazification hasn't even begun."

"The only step that has been made," he said, "was to take into custody the big chiefs of the Nazi party who were in commanding positions of industry. All the minor officials still are occupying very important positions. The people cannot express their opinions because they are afraid of them."

The British have tossed thousands of Nazis out of Ruhr industry. More thousands have been rejected in their applications for jobs.

They have held to the principle, though, of engaging Germans to do the job of turning out coal and steel and finding competent men who weren't dyed-in-the-wool Nazis has been an admittedly hard task.

Renner now is trying to get started a novel approach to restoration of the Ruhr—volunteer workmen to spend their Sundays at no pay clearing away the rubble, repairing electric lines and sewers.

He said he had some offers from German miners to take part in such a campaign, each demanding, however, that Nazis be compelled to help.

He declared that he and his political party are dead set against internationalizing the Ruhr.

"The Communist party always fought against the idea of separating the Ruhr from the reich," he said.

Furniture Makers Demand Lumber Production Jump

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Furniture manufacturers told a senate committee Tuesday that lumber supplies must be increased if furniture is to be produced for the homes planned for veterans.

Leo Heer, vice president of the National Retail Furniture Association, said supplies of hardwood available for furniture manufacturing have declined since V-J day.

"The situation has become so serious," he said, "that curtailment of furniture production has already occurred and further curtailment is expected unless more lumber is made available."

Heer also gave a senate agriculture subcommittee, which is investigating the shortage of lumber, a joint statement from the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers and the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association.

It said the maximum consumption of hardwood lumber by their industry in its peak year of production was 2,250,000,000 board feet and that it would require 4,500,000,000 feet to make furniture for the 2,700,000 new housing units the housing administrator proposes for 1946-47.

That demand, the statement said, would be on top of current, unfilled demand accumulated during the war.

"It is obvious to us," the statement added, "that exports of hardwood during this critical period would endanger the housing program by further curtailing the production of furniture which is required to convert a house into a home."

Heer said that a survey showed "an amazing and alarming" decline in retail inventories since March, 1945, with the decline in stocks of bedroom and dining room furniture in some larger establishments ranging from 50 to 90 per cent.

Producers testified that declining lumber production was due to OPA price ceilings and restrictions.

Kenneth Smith, San Francisco, president of the Redwood Association, said the way to get more lumber was "either throw the shackles and regimentation out the window or force OPA to quit being theoretical."

Similarly, C. J. Warren, McNary, Ariz., testified the "only real cure is to immediately remove price control."

Warren said he spoke for a group of western pine manufacturers "who are completely fed up with the unrealistic and completely impossible OPA pricing."

A poll of 114 mills as to what price increase they thought necessary to increase production of western pine, he said, brought replies ranging from $3.50 to $20 a thousand board feet, with the "weighted average" a little over $8.00.

Warren said lumber prices "in the black market" are "far higher than the $8 increase."

From Arthur Paul, director of the Commerce Department's office of international trade, the committee received a statement contending "exports have not been, and will not be, as long as we maintain control, a serious drain on our lumber supplies."

"As a matter of fact," the statement said, "we import more lumber, especially for home construction types, than we export."

More Penicillin...
because Nickel guards purity...prevents spoilage
Production of this miracle drug begins with cultures of green mold. As the mold grows and thrives, it secretes small amounts of penicillin.
Equipment must be kept sterile, for even the meager yield can be reduced or completely wiped out by the presence of the slightest amount of foreign bacteria or other contamination.
To aid in keeping output high... to protect every gram of this new hope of health ... penicillin manufacturers call on your "Unseen Friend" NICKEL. "Unseen" because it's combined with other elements to produce corrosion-resisting stainless steel, Inconel, Monel and other Nickel alloys needed for safe processing.
Tanks, trays, tables, filters and other equipment made of these materials resist corrosion... remain smooth and easy to keep clean and sterile... help prevent contamination.
In the manufacture of many other important pharmaceuticals, the friendly hand of Nickel is at work, guarding product purity ... and you.
In these and countless other ways this versatile metal is your "Unseen Friend"... as much a part of your daily life as the dentifrice you use.

Feed Situation To Get Attention

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP) Chairman Pace, Democrat, Georgia, of the House Special Food Committee, said Tuesday the livestock feed situation needs "immediate attention" and that his group soon will make some recommendations to the Secretary of Agriculture.

He made the observation at the close of a day's hearings in which numerous cattle and poultry feed producers testified that price controls were causing liquidation of dairy herds and black market operations.

Testifying for New England feed manufacturers, Dinsmore Worthing, of Boston, Mass., declared unless more grain is made available they will be reduced to less than 50 per cent of their normal business by early April. The result will be a more drastic liquidation of poultry than already has taken place and will pinch dairymen, he said.

class political crisis since it is the government's view that elections cannot be held so long as foreign troops remain in the country.

A news dispatch from Tehran told of mobs of demonstrators. It said that since the Tudeh party members began gathering in pro-Soviet Azerbaijan, but their main objective is believed to be bases in the Dardanelles.

3. Actions to try to establish a Soviet footing in British-dominated Greece. This is not directly related to the presence of troops in Iran, but is considered by some authorities here to be a kind of left-hand punch possibility following up the activities in Iran.

On Iran detailed factual information is difficult to obtain. However, diplomats here say they are convinced that despite their announced partial withdrawal of March 2 the Russians have at least maintained their strength and probably have increased it. American and British estimates of the Russian troops in Iran as of March 2 varied between 70,000 and 75,000.

In connection with the possibility of a coup, authorities here say Russian troops are stationed within 23 miles of the Iranian capital, being in strength at the city of Karej.

Lowell Thomas Broadcasts Atlanta Belle's Ski 'Spill'

Aillene Minor, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Minor, recently had what might be called life's most embarrassing moment, not to mention having her reputation as a ski expert ruined before the eyes of hundreds. It happened like this: Aillene, accompanied by Margaret Boyd and Nancy Majors, was taking a rest from her studies at Pine Manor Junior College to enjoy the winter sports at North Conway, N. H.

One day she was floating gracefully down the long ski run, when suddenly about halfway down the hill, one of her skis came off and went flying into space, leaving astonished Aillene literally with but one leg to stand on. She did what anybody else would have done—put her skis over one shoulder and walked the rest of the way down the long hill before hundreds of amused and laughing spectators! When she finally reached the bottom of the run, with the applause of the crowd ringing in her ears, Aillene discovered that the well-known news commentator, Lowell Thomas, had been broadcasting over a nation-wide hook-up, and had given his millions of listeners a play-by-play description of a young lady who had lost one ski in midair and had to "walk back from a ride"!

The day was full of surprises, for every time she turned around Aillene met someone from Atlanta. Mr. and Mrs. Turner Jones, their daughter and son, Ashby and Turner Jones Jr., were staying at the same inn, and Anne Marshall Emmert was also there with a group of college girls from Dana Hall. But that wasn't all.

She saw a very tall, handsome young man skiing down the hill just in front of her take a nose dive and land flat on his face in the snow. When he untangled himself from his skis and got to his feet again, she discovered that it was Billy Huger Jr., of all people!

CRAIGS TO ARRIVE FRIDAY

An attractive family group from Baltimore, Md., including Catherine (Mrs. Albert P.) Craig and her curly-haired daughters, Cathy, aged six, and Connie, who is four, will arrive on Friday to spend two weeks with Catherine's sister, Maude (Mrs. Herman) Evins, at her home on Camden road, before moving to Hamilton, Ontario, for future residence. Catherine's husband, affectionately called "Gus" by his intimates, has recently been elevated to the important post of assistant to the president of Westinghouse Electric Company in Canada.

Catherine, who will be remembered as the former Catherine Carlton, daughter of Mrs. James E. Carlton, is always an inspiration for delightful social gatherings when she visits her native city. Many are already being contemplated.

JIM ALSTON'S WIFE AND SON ARRIVE

Friday is going to be a great day for the Philip Alston family. If all goes well, Lucile, Jim Alston's wife, and their nine-month-old son, Stuart, will arrive by plane from London. And at the New York airport will be Jim and his mother, Mrs. Philip Alston Sr., and his aunt, Mrs. Kendrick Goldsmith, to shower the voyagers with affection. It will be Lucile's first introduction to her mother-in-law and aunt, and their first glimpse of little Stuart.

There is another big IF looming on the horizon. If cunning little Stuart takes to his grandmother, as does everyone else who knows her, then Mrs. Alston and Mrs. Goldsmith will return to Atlanta with him, leaving his parents in New York to enjoy the bright lights and excitement for a week or more before coming to Jim's native city, where a charming home on Walker terrace awaits them. The home was completely outfitted by Jim's mother, even to the garden, which is chockful of lovely English flowers to make Lucile feel at home in her new American environment.

Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. Goldsmith are already in New York, at the Plaza, having gone up the first of the week to see a few shows and do a bit of shopping. The entire Alston family, as well as their legion of friends, is anxiously anticipating the arrival of Jim's attractive wife and son from London.

ANOTHER HITCH IN GIRTH RATE

It's Open-Face Hamburgers, Toastless Eggs for Atlanta

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

Atlanta took another hitch in its girthrate as that old welcoming cry of the friendly breakfast waitress changed from "Two on a raft, Bill," to "Scramble two . . . forget the lifeboat."

Restaurant owners, submitting to the appeal from President Truman to share the grain and oil with starving Europeans, prepared yesterday to serve such emergency rations as open-face hamburgers, baseless chicken-a-la-king, and bacon or eggs without toast.

Though they were loathe to part with that plateful of bread guaranteed to take the edge off their customers' appetites while the entrees were in the making, they agreed that this new share-the-food program would be welcomed by men and women alike.

"Women especially," commented one proprietor, adjusting his slicer to its thinnest gauge. "Women are gonna get so they don't eat no bread at all. This new diet is gonna please the women."

It may at that. Women talk a lot about those 100-calory slices of bread, but those who serve them say they never eat more than half a slice or so per meal.

The other emergency measures, the three-layer cake ban, the substitution of fruit for cakes and pies, the broiling of fish, boiled dressings pinch-hitting for French or mayonnaise, all will be popular with figure-conscious women, as well as dietitians who have long maintained that America's health suffered from too much fat and starch.

If the emergency lasts long enough, those Scarlet O'Hara hand-span waistlines may be back to stay. If so, President Truman won't need to campaign for a second term.

$482,408 Total Raised by BWMU; Gain of $42,890

Inspired by reports of unprecedented success in their finances Georgia women of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union yesterday set goals for a year of still greater achievement in the coming 12 months. The grand total of all moneys raised by the union, $482,408, shows an increase of $42,890 above the year before.

During the next 12 months Georgia Baptist women will raise the sum of $275,000 as their contribution to the co-operative program of the denomination for world-wide work. The new goal is an increase of $15,000 above that set for the past year.

In the special Lottie Moon Christmas offerings for foreign mission work the new goal of $65,000 has been accepted. The goal of $50,000 for the past year was overpaid in the sum of $15,000. Another new project of Baptist women in Georgia is to raise $4,500 for special training school support.

During the year past the sum of $40,000 for a summer camp at Clayton was sponsored, with $37,500 of the amount now in hand.

Under such conditions the annual meeting of the Georgia Baptist Woman's Missionary Union yesterday started its three-day session at the Druid Hills Baptist church, with nearly a thousand registered delegates present. Mrs. Peter Kittles, of Sylvania, delivered the presidential address, followed by the report of Miss Janice Singleton, executive secretary - treasurer. Miss Singleton stated that, of the 2,511 Baptist churches in Georgia, 1,411 have no woman's missionary society.

Divisional vice presidents were presented and reported as follows: Mrs. Elmer Twittoy, Mrs. R. O. Jackson, Mrs. W. S. Adams, Mrs. J. M. Gibson, Mrs. Luther Bloodworth, Mrs. W. J. Carswell, Mrs. J. L. Mims and Mrs. R. M. Dixon.

During the afternoon session welcome was extended to the convention by Mrs. C. H. Whetstone, president of the Druid Hills union; Mrs. S. D. Katz, superintendent of the Atlanta Association; Mrs. J. M. Gibson, vice president of the North Central division, and Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor-host.

A highlight feature of the night session was the presentation of foreign missionaries present. Dr. T. W. Ayers was master of ceremonies, and presented missionaries as follows: Miss Mary Crawford, Miss Blanche Bradley, Miss Annie Sandlin, Miss Jessie Greene, Mrs. S. E. Ayers and Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Pruitt, all of China; Mrs. Henry Munger, from the Philippine Islands; Dr. Dewey Moore, from Italy, and Dr. and Mrs. A. Scott Patterson, from Africa.

The address of the night session was delivered by Dr. Dewey Moore, who spoke on the subject, "Lamps of Testimony in Europe."

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Dating Two Fellows Is Not Two-Timing

You ache all over when you think how far away Jack is. You had such fun with him. He means so much to you. You've been going together for months and months and everybody thinks its lovely. There is none in the world like Jack. But he went away.

He looked beautiful in his uniform. You carry his picture with you wherever you go. You hang out the window watching for the mailman to bring Jack's letters. You sit up half the night writing your daily screed to him.

A BIRD IN THE HAND

And along came Tim. You liked the way he looked right off the bat. You liked the way he danced and smiled . . . you liked his friends. But your conscience smote you.

It wouldn't be right, you said to yourself, to go out with Tim behind Jack's back. It isn't loyal to Jack to like Tim as much as you do. There's something wrong somewhere, you decide . . . but you can't put your finger on it.

You'd been staying home night after night with nothing to do since Jack went away. You were gradually turning into a little blue grouse. Even your letters showed it. You didn't know what the gang was up to . . . you hadn't seen them. You couldn't very well go along stag. And you felt funny calling up Jack's friends to see if they'd include you in their fun . . . just because of Jack and you. So you haven't seen anybody and you haven't gone anywhere.

And you got so sick of that, you accepted Tim's invitations . . . and found yourself having a very good time indeed. Some of your friends asked you what happened to you and Jack . . . and you said nothing had happened. They cocked an eyebrow . . . and that's what gave you the idea you were playing Jack false. Your friendship with Tim was two-timing.

It wasn't even fair to Tim, you decided . . . because you'd been going with Jack so long and cared for him so much. So there you were with a decision on your hands. Which boy would you choose? Jack who was so far away but still a love and a lamb? Or Tim who was on the spot and also a love and a lamb? You tossed at nights trying to make a choice . . . 'cause you couldn't have both . . . you thought.

AND WHY NOT?

You can have two . . . you can have many boy friends . . . if none of them thinks he is it exclusive. But just let one of them get the idea that he has a monopoly on your time and thoughts . . . and dating anybody behind his back is two-timing. If your friends know you have many friends . . . you're free to date anybody. You can only have an exclusive arrangement with one boy at a time. So it's up to you to see that you aren't tied hand and foot!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

DOCTOR IN CONSPIRACY WITH DENTIST

Husband told by our dentist he has pus on gums and should have all his teeth pulled, as he has only three good ones left. I made him consult our doctor and he said if it was his teeth he'd let no dentist pull them all at once. So now my husband is confused, as he thinks his teeth cause his having to wear glasses. (Mrs. E. M.)

Answer—If they were my teeth I'd hang onto the three sound ones for dear life—and I'd part with only such teeth as may be beyond repair by skilled dentistry, and then only after consultation between dentist and doctor. I agree with the doctor that if more than two or three teeth are to be extracted it is better to extract them in successive sittings, not more than two at a time.

WHAT, NO TERPIN HYDRATE?

Druggist here refuses to dispense terpin hydrate without prescription, as he says it contains codeine. (P. E. H.)

Answer—He means he can't dispense narcotics without prescription—codeine, morphine, heroin, etc. Any druggist can sell two-grain capsules or tablets to anybody without prescription. I warn readers not to take any preparation that contains codeine or other narcotic with or without terpin hydrate. In the booklet "Call It Cry" I give instruction for the use of hydrate and also pure oil of turpentine (not common turpentine) for chronic bronchitis and intractable winter cough. For copy the booklet send 25 cents and of the booklet send 25 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CHLORAMINE

Read in scientific journal that chloramine tablets are a good antiseptic mouthwash. I have found them excellent as dentifrice too—one tablet dissolved in one-half glassful of water. What effect would they have on the teeth? (M. H.)

Answer—Convenient way to apply chlorine as antiseptic. Chlorine is the active element in chlorinated lime (commonly called chlorid of lime), much used as disinfectant. It is somewhat deodorant. In my opinion plain soap, any soap you have handy is as good as anything else to keep mouth and teeth clean. Not even chlorine is a better antiseptic than soap or soapy water. So far as I know the constant use of chloramine should not injure the teeth, but I'd ask my dentist about that.

Exercise, Diet Helps Beautify That Chinline

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

Will exercise make a thin neck thinner? Which deals more firmly with a double chin, exercise or diet? Will chinner-uppers help a scrawny neck look more youthful or just stretch the skin and leave us holding the bag? These are some of the burning questions.

Let's begin with the underlying muscles of the throat. The main muscles are braced with smaller ones and tonus in these muscles helps to preserve the front line of the throat. When these muscles are round and full, the skin is snug and unlined. How to keep it that way? With exercise. Exercise, instead of making a thin neck thinner, actually makes it fuller and certainly younger looking.

Now about double chins . . . if exercise develops, will it make a double chin bigger? Exercise can't grow fat! It wears it down. The extra calories come to full bloom under the chin because that is one spot where the muscles tend to lose tone. The platysma, a thin sheet of muscle fibers between the lower jaw and the collar bone, frequently becomes imbedded with fat. Exercise is the only way to keep this muscle in tone.

In the case of a double chin, diet is important if your weight is above normal. Normal weight should always be the aim. But to get beautiful results, the diet must be backed up with good chin-toners.

Whether your chin is too thin or too plump, or merely lined, exercise is the beauty measure. Cold cream and warm oil act as lubricants and help to ward off wrinkles, and cold water is an astringent, but it takes exercise to tone flabby muscles.

Chin exercises will not stretch the skin on the throat if they are done correctly. Concentrate on moving the muscles under the skin. "Set" your jaw, tense the throat muscles and make each movement slowly.

Resistance exercises work fastest because they work the muscles harder. Try this one: start with chin level, fingers locked and backs of hands placed under the chin. Resisting with the throat muscles and pushing with hands, force your head back until you are gazing at the ceiling. Reverse, pushing with the throat muscles and resisting with the hands. That's exercise!

No amount of exercise can keep the chinline looking like a twenty-year-old's if you let your head droop forward like a wilted lily. Here's an exercise to counteract the cause: Lie face down, arms clasped together in back. Raise head and upper part of body off floor, tip head back, chin in air. Contract your back muscles. Pull. Repeat three times.

There is a new leaflet, "Keep Your Chin Up," for which you may send. Please enclose a stamped, return envelope, with three cents in coin or stamps to cover cost of handling.

The most inexpensive form of advertising is the kind that brings results; you can sell or rent almost anything through low-cost Constitution Want Ads. Phone WA. 6565.

The appeal of wide open spaces is felt in this junior dress by Joan Miller. A Texas cowboy influence is evidenced in the colored binding used to accent the yoke, pointed collar, and bodice closing. The dress is two-piece, a tuck-in shirt and skirt combination. All-black with white binding, or white with red, green or blue binding, are available in junior sizes, 9 to 15, at about $14.

Veterans' Postwar Notebook

By MAJ. THOMAS M. NIAL

A few days after President Truman signed the GI bill amendments late in December, I filled this space with two articles which briefly outlined for you the most important changes.

Of course, they didn't tell half, or even quarter, of the story. But there was a reason.

When congress passes a bill, it shakes the immediate responsibility from its shoulders and turns to another job. The President signs the bill, and it becomes law. Then somebody or something has to make it work.

Now, the Veterans' Administration naturally is the agency that has to set up machinery to make the new GI bill function. And it isn't quite so easy as falling off a diet.

No kidding, it takes time to do this. First, the VA frequently must figure out just what the intent of congress was when it installed a certain something in the new law. That's known as interpretation—the solicitor of the VA has to interpret what congress meant when it said what it said. I talked about this before.

Second, the VA has to equip itself to handle the completely new features of the new law. For example, the amendments say that a veteran eligible for education under both the GI bill and Public Law 16 may take a "combination of both." Well, that's a completely new feature, and the VA has to draw up rules and regulations for it.

Actually, the VA has to adjust itself to a new situation the same as they say a guy has to do when he gets out of the service. Maybe it's even tougher for the VA to do this, than it is for most veterans.

For one thing, the new loan setup is as different from the old as a GI wolf is from a high-school freshman. It's taken time for the VA to work out details to put the new loan features into effect. In fact, the new GI bill says the VA can have up to 90 days to make new loan rules and regulations, new forms and methods of procedure.

Those 90 days won't be over until the end of this month.

That explains why it's difficult to guess just how much the loan amendments are going to help any of us vets who will want to apply for loans. The original loan provisions had a plump, girlish figure. The new ones are streamlined. They should help.

All of us know that in the past the veterans who wanted GI loans and the lenders who wanted to make them gave out howls of anguish and discontent over restrictions and delays. The sounds evidently reached constructive ears in congress when the loan section amendments were being written.

Now it's safe to say that congress appears to have gone a long way to correct some of the troubles and make it easier for a veteran to get speedy action from the GI loan machinery.

What I want to do in my next few articles is to hit the changes in the GI bill loan business first. After a try at making them clear and understandable, I'll go on to decipher other changes, so you can keep up to date.

The WORRY CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

The Bible holds a beautiful case for psychoanalysis. And the young doctor described below is in the same boat with Joseph, who was jailed in Egypt 3,000 years ago because of an older woman's illicit desires.

CASE J-239: An interne at one of our Chicago hospitals came to me with this unusual tale:

"One of the patients in my ward has started the story that I have been making improper advances to her. She also tells that I have been trying to get her telephone number so that I can call her for a date after she leaves the hospital.

"One of our nurses reports that she heard the woman inciting her husband about it. This patient is twice my age and not attractive physically. I change dressings once a day on her leg, but that is the only time I ever see her.

"What the devil a young fellow like me could see in her is beyond me. It seems the height of egotism to me for her to think I'd be interested in her in any other sense than medically. What makes her say such things, anyway?"

DIAGNOSIS

The young physician in this case was a friend of mine, and I knew positively that this woman's statements were not based on any improper behavior on his part.

Most busy physicians and other professional men encounter this same danger many times each year. That is one reason why they keep office nurses, namely, to protect themselves against the wild tales of ardent female patients.

The explanation of this case was well illustrated thousands of years ago by the story of Joseph in Egypt. It might be a good plan for physicians to frame this Biblical story along with the oath of Hippocrates.

You may recall that Joseph found favor in the house of his Egyptian master and was placed in charge. But his master's wife, like the interne's patient, became interested in her young attendant.

PSYCHOANALYSIS IN BIBLE

"And it came to pass as she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkened not unto her, to lie by her or to be with her. . . . And she caught him by his garment, saying, 'Lie with me,' and he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got him out. And it came to pass, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand, and was fled forth.

"That she called unto the men of her house, and spake unto them, saying, 'See, he hath brought in a Hebrew unto us to mock us. He came in unto me to lie with me, and I cried out with a loud voice; and it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left his garment by me, and fled, and got him out.' And she laid up his garment by her, until his master came home."

And then she told her husband the same story with increased fervor, so Joseph was put in prison.

PROJECTED DESIRES

This middle-aged female patient in the hospital felt attracted to the hardsome young physician attending her. Because she undoubtedly wanted him and he ignored her except as a medical problem, she reversed the true statement of the case and began saying that he wanted her. Joseph was in the same boat with this interne.

By telling her husband this wild story, she incited his jealousy and rage, which, of course, also inflated her sex ego. At the same time she was advertising the fact, so she thought, that she was attractive to other men. The wish was mother to the deed.

She wanted to be attractive to men, especially since she was fading physically owing to her age, so she tried to fool herself, her husband, and the public.

City Maps Plan To Rid City Of Smoke

Encouraged by a recommendation that salaries be hiked in some instances and that requirements for personnel be lowered in others, the Atlanta Smoke Abatement Bureau plans an intensive campaign to curb the nuisance.

In a meeting following recommendations on a revision of salaries and standards by the city personnel board, the bureau, headed by Prof. R. S. King, of Georgia Tech, yesterday decided to join William E. Tidmore, director, in an effort to recruit employes to reactivate the bureau.

Asserting that the revisions recommended by the personnel board give promise of recruitment of needed personnel, King and his associates said they believe real progress will be made within the next few months.

Members of the board laid plans for reactivation after the personnel board had approved reclassification of bureau personnel and had decided to file their recommendations for council action Monday.

Under the plan, Tidmore will be raised one notch in his classification, increases in salaries also are provided for two assistants whose places are now vacant, requirements for departmental inspectors will be reduced in the hope of inducing men to apply for the jobs.

Failure of the personnel department to be able to supply men meeting the old high standards at the salaries paid was assigned as the cause for the revision in salaries and requirements.

James P. Allen, member of the city personnel board, contended that high standards should be maintained and salaries made attractive enough to procure competent personnel, but other members of the board followed recommendations of Tidmore and voted the changes.

Aid Proper Vets, Arnall Asks Private Banks

Gov. Arnall has asked the private banks for a pledge to make loans to proper veterans, after State Commander Herbert Moon, of the American Legion, asked activation of the Veterans' Resettlement Corporation.

Moon complained that many veterans are unable to obtain loans from private banks. He said the executive committee of the Legion wants the $5,000,000 state lending corporation activated to provide loans for veterans.

The Governor yesterday transmitted Moon's letter to the Georgia Bankers' Association, and told the Legion chief that "if the association fails to make proper loans to veterans, I will be delighted to activate the corporation if it is legally possible to do so."

"Bankers and other private lending agencies have assured me in the past that they are caring for loans to veterans," Arnall wrote Cmdr. Moon. "Unless there is a pressing need which cannot otherwise be met, I think it is unwise to activate the corporation."

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. recently said that the corporation could not be activated since no means of security was offered for bond companies. The State Ports Authority, which is financed by self-liquidating revenue certificates such as the corporation would be financed, had to pledge the rentals of the W. & A. Railroad as security in order to sell the bonds.

While it might be impossible to sell bonds, some observers said the state treasury could put up money from its surplus funds. The state cannot pledge its credit to finance this corporation, but if it had funds on hand it could put these up, observers said.

GOV. ARNALL PRAISES ABERCROMBIE FOR FIGHT TO GET BATTEY HOSPITAL

State Health Commissioner T. F. Abercrombie's fight to acquire Battey General hospital from the federal government for use as a state tuberculosis hospital has won the praise of Gov. Arnall.

In a letter to Abercrombie yesterday, Gov. Arnall said: "I want to congratulate you sincerely upon your enterprise, initiative and perserverance in the acquirement of the Battey General hospital at Rome for the state department of public health.

"This is one of the greatest services you have ever rendered to the state. It will stand as a lasting monument to your interest in public health in Georgia.

"Many other officials would have discontinued their efforts after it became so apparent that they were meeting with opposition in Washington, but you worked all the harder. I am proud of you and want the people of Georgia to know that in you we have one of our very ablest public officials."

10 Georgians Face Federal Indictments

Theft of government property and interstate shipments of allegedly stolen goods were prominent in charges against ten Georgians indicted here yesterday by a federal grand jury.

Thomas Eugene Austin, 25, of Tucker, and Elbert Quinton Yancey, alias Curley Young, 22, of 400 Whitehall street, S. W., were indicted for alleged theft of a case of cigarets from the Great Southern Trucking Company's Atlanta depot on Dec. 28, 1945. J. D. Pruitt, of Alpharetta, and James Gordon Edwards, 23, of 491 Pulliam street, S. W., were charged with theft on Oct. 1, 1945, of a case of shoes being shipped from Mobile, Ala., to Atlanta.

Theft of government property was charged in indictments against Willie Leverett Thomas Jr., 23, of 456 East Connally street, alleged to have stolen an automobile from the Conley ASF depot on March 2; and William Lawrence Haley, 25, of 855 Beecher street, S. W., alleged to have stolen an electric drill from the Bell Aircraft Corporation at Marietta.

Also indicted: Robert Martin Davis and Lonnie William Hyfield, of Fulton county, charged with transportation of a stolen automobile from Bynum, Ala., to Atlanta on Feb. 25; James H. L. Whittemore, of Atlanta, charged with harboring a Navy deserter; Mrs. Eunice Smith, also known as Mrs. Eunice Bock, of Fulton county, charged with accepting a government pension under false pretenses.

Atlantan's Trial Set On Federal Charges

Robert A. Calvert, Atlantan recently indicted by a federal grand jury here on charges of income tax evasion and fraud against the government in connection with renegotiation contracts of his company, the Calvert Iron Works, Inc., waived arraignment before Federal Judge Marvin Underwood yesterday and entered a plea of "not guilty" to two indictments.

Calvert appeared in the U. S. district court with his attorney, Hal Lindsay.

His trial has been set for April 29.

$17,000 Asked To Drain Tract

Development of the largest unimproved industrial site inside the city limits hinges on approval of a $17,000 appropriation for storm water drains by the mayor and city council. The tract is located on the Georgia railroad off Rogers avenue.

Members of council's sewer committee recommended that the finance committee provide the funds at a meeting yesterday after it was explained that the drains would pave the way for development of more than 1,000,000 square feet of new industrial properties which would increase tax values.

Committee members also recommended that approximately $1,500 be provided for another storm water drain extending from Eighth street and Techwood drive in order to clear the way for the expansion of Georgia Tech. Both measures will go to council Monday and probably will be referred to the finance committee.

2,051 GI Loans In Georgia Total Nearly 9 Million

A total of 2,051 loans with a cumulative value of $8,878,853 has been made by Georgia veterans under the loan guaranty provisions of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, Vaux Owen, Georgia regional manager of the VA, has disclosed.

With the aid of a government guaranty, 1,837 veterans are purchasing homes, 87 are buying farms or farm equipment, and 127 have bought their own business, Owen said yesterday.

The cumulative value of home loans was $8,331,623; farm loans, 200,854; business loans, $346,375.

Three home loans amounting to $5,245 and two business loans totaling $1,400 have been repaid in full, Owen reported.

To date only one veteran in Georgia has defaulted on a loan which has resulted in a claim being paid by the VA. The single default was on a business guaranty commitment.

Clay's Condition 'Good'

The condition of Ryburn Clay, operated on for hernia at St. Joseph's infirmary, was said last night to be "good." He went to the hospital yesterday.

Private Enterprise Called Housing Aid

Responsibility for, and hope of, permanent alleviation of the nation-wide housing shortage rests with private enterprise, in the opinion of Clarence N. Walker, regional representative of the National Housing Agency and newly appointed regional housing expediter.

Walker told members of the Civitan Club here yesterday that 27,000 permanent homes must be constructed in the United States next year if any measure of relief is expected.

The NHA representative has just returned from Washington, D. C., where he conferred with National Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt. In his address here Walker traced growth of the housing shortage and pointed out "self-evident" reasons for the continuing critical situation.

MAYOR BLESSES BALLET SHOW

Mayor Hartsfield has given his blessings to the Atlanta Civic Ballet, which will be presented to the public April 30 at the Erlanger theater by a company of 27 directed by Mrs. Dorothy Alexander.

Hartsfield was presented tickets to the performance by two members of the ballet, Misses Anne Compton and Zeba Cate. D. F. McClatchey is president of the Civitan Club, which is sponsoring the ballet for the first time.

Cotton Marts Will Retain Present Rates

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—The Dow-Jones & Company business news agency, said today "it is learned" that New York Cotton Exchange managers have advised Economic Stabilizer Chester B wles that the exchange will retain its present scale of margin requirements for futures trading. The decision was said to have been made at a special meeting yesterday.

Bowles last week asked the cotton exchanges at New York, New Orleans and Chicago to raise margin requirement as a means to curb speculation. Dow Jones said boards of the New Orleans and Chicago exchanges also were reported to have declined to raise margins.

Current margins are $10 a bale at Chicago, $15 a bale at New Orleans and $20 at New York where the margins advance $5 a bale for each cent advance in price.

Dow-Jones said, "It is understood that the board of managers of the New York Cotton Exchange advised Bowles it feels the present margin scale is high enough and that any further increase would destroy the liquidity of the market and its purpose. It was also felt that the present margins which were raised in January this year, have lacked opportunity for a fair test since the margins on the other exchanges were not uniform with those of the New York exchange."

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—(AP) D. T. Manget Jr., president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, announced today that the exchange had declined to agree in full to a: OPA request for increased margin requirements in cotton futures trading.

Manget said the OPA had asked for margins of $40 a bale beginning at 27 cents and going up to $90 a bale when cotton reached 32 and 33 cents a pound.

The New Orleans Exchange proposed to Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles margins of $10 a bale below 25 cents a pound; $35 a bale at 30 cents a pound and $5 a bale for each rise in price above 30 cents a pound Manget said.

The present margin here is $15 a bale at 25 to 26 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—Scattered stocks made some headway in today's market although many leaders continued to drift lower in the slowest dealings for about seven months.

Steels came up at the finish, along with other favorites, when ceilings were lifted on castings and railroad specialties. Motors responded somewhat mildly to action of the OPA in paving the way for increased prices of new cars. Amusements still reflected the earnings outlook in this field. A few aircrafts were buoyed by prospects for maintaining a strong military establishment.

Bearish aspects of foreign developments and widespread strike stalemates continued to inspire some selling and keep numerous customers in neutral territory.

The ticker tape dozed at frequent intervals after a fairly active opening. Advances were a shade in the majority at the close.

Uncertain trends developed in the bond market today. A number of rails attracted modest backing but plus and minus signs were fairly well mixed toward the close of the session. Dealers appeared to be waiting for fresh developments in the labor and price fields before taking a more definite position in the market.

In the curb the exceptionally "thin" Aluminum Ltd. jumped 11 points. Among forward leaners were Coro, Inc., Cities Service, Garret Corp. and Phillips Packing. Lynch Corp. was up two on a stock splitup proposal. Turnover here was 340,000 shares versus 390,000 yesterday.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Following is a partial tabulation of today's stock transactions on the New York Stock Exchange.

Emory Moves To Ease Housing For Faculty

Another step to relieve the acute housing shortage at Emory began when contractors broke ground on Haygood drive Monday day for 13 two and three-bedroom houses for faculty members. Twenty-five units, each costing $6,000, will be erected in all.

The new houses, according to university officials, will be rented to faculty members back from war services, at reasonable prices sufficient to pay for them in 25 years, but will take care of only a few of the 75 returned faculty veterans. There are only 85 new members of the staff to be housed.

Twenty-six of the 100 trailers acquired from the government for student veterans are occupied or ready for occupancy. The remainder, officials said, will be ready by the end of the month.

Construction of two 50-unit dormitories for married students will be under way by the end of the year.
